Bates Returns Next Week as Mansfield's Chief of Police

Meade K. Bates said today that he has submitted his resignation as a special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and expects to resume his post as Mansfield's chief of police late next week.

Bates told The News-Journal he will return to his local post just as soon as he can wind up routine affairs arising from his year's service with the FBI. He recently revised an application for a second year's leave of absence to request a 30-day leave to permit his closing out of federal bureau details.

When the city Civil Service commission on Dec. 1 decided his leave could not extend beyond one year (or Jan. 14) Bates returned to his chief's post on Jan. 11. Five days later he asked a second year's leave but altered his plans on Jan. 18. Some city hall sources said Mayor Locke and his advisers brought pressure to bear to return Bates to the chief's chair.

In explaining his position, Bates, with nearly 20 years of service in the police department, said that possible physical disability arising during a leave period would not entitle him to pension benefits from the department and that he preferred to protect his seniority and retirement privileges rather than continue in the federal position.

RULE OUT 6,000

Election Officials Disqualify That Many City Voters.

Names of approximately 6,000 Mansfielders will be removed from lists of residents eligible for voting because of their failure to vote in primaries, special or general elections within the past two years as provided by Ohio law, according to Philip Wolfe, Richland county board of elections clerk.

Cards will be mailed soon to the last known addresses of such persons informing them that in order to be able to vote again it will be necessary for them to register during the period between March 15 and a date 28 days before the date of the next election. Registrations close 28 days preceding an election and remain closed until 10 days afterward. Registration is not necessary in the case of voters outside the city.

Since the last presidential election, when a big registration was affected, there has been a gradual decline in the number of voters, Wolfe said.

THRUSTS CHUM BENEATH TRAIN

11 Year Old Boy Admits Action To Obtain Cheap Watch.

CRANSTON, R. I. —(UP)— An 11-year-old Cranston schoolboy has confessed that he shoved a playmate into the path of a speeding passenger train and then robbed the child's body of a cheap wristwatch and $1.05 in cash, authorities announced today.

The victim was Clinton Place, jr., 11, of Providence who lived near the Cranston line. He was crushed beneath the wheels of a New York-bound New Haven railroad train two weeks ago during an agrument over the watch.

A three-man board composed of District Judge Louis W. Dunn, City Solicitor Edward W. Day and Police Chief Nelson Bournet met to determine what action could be brought against the boy, whose identity was not revealed.

That's Rate of Fine Imposed on Columbus Speeder.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — A young war plant worker today found speeding to be an expensive pastime. It cost him exactly $1 per mile.

Municipal Judge Ben F. Pfefferle set the "rate," after Charles Delfino, 22, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving 75 miles an hour in James road last week. "I'll fine you $1 a mile—$75 and costs. I'll recommend that your ration book be taken up," said the judge.

COUNTY'S WAR BOND GOAL SET AT $4,968,000

Tougher Job Ahead For 1943 Says Eliot as Treasury Announces Quotas.

JANUARY CALL $472,000

Chairman Urges Conversion of Stamp Books as Means of Going 'Over Top.'

Richland countians after piling up an outstanding record in war bond purchases during 1942, have been assigned an even tougher job for 1943, Paul M. Eliot, chairman of the county war savings committee, revealed today.

Making public a month-by-month quota, established by the treasury department, Eliot reported that the county would be called on to invest a total of $4,968,000 in war bonds during the year.

The January quota is $472,000 and that for next month $340,000. Sales are based on outright purchases, conversion of stamp books, and bond acquired through payroll deductions.

February, Eliot said, has been designated as an additional clean-up month for converting stamp books.

Hence, Eliot issued an appeal to all persons who have started stamp books to convert them into bonds "at the earliest possible moment."

"From the looks of the 1943 quota," Eliot said, "we have a tremendous job on our hands."

Here are the month-by-month quotas:

January	$ 472,000
February	340,000
March	333,000
April	343,000
May	378,000
June	385,000
July	435,000
August	405,000
September	440,000
October	435,000
November	452,000
December	550,000
Total	$4,968,000

As during 1942, the largest quotas come toward the end of the year, although the quota for this month now drawing to a close, is the second highest of all.

SOME JUMP!

Treasury Asks Debt Limit Boost to 210 Billions.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The treasury's experts go before congress today to ask that the public debt limit be increased from its present ceiling of $125,000,000,000 to $210,000,000,000.

Undersecretary of the Treasury Daniel W. Bell and Assistant Secretary John L. Sullivan were called to support the administration's debt-ceiling bill as the house ways and means committee opened hearings on the measure.

Speedy action on the bill is wanted since officials believe that the present debt limit probably will be reached in April. President Roosevelt told congress in his budget message that unless taxes are increased the public debt will reach $210,000,000,000 by the end of the next fiscal year, which begins July 1.

Nazi Whips Duce's Ambassador to Berlin

Finds Wife In Arms of Envoy, Tosses Him Down Stairs.

(By United Press)

Foppish Dino Alfieri, Italian ambassador to Germany, has been horsewhipped by a German officer who, returning wounded from the African front found his wife in the Fascist envoy's arms, the secret German army radio station Gustave Siegfried Eins said today.

As a result of the German army has in effect demanded that Alfieri be dismissed and sent home.

The officer in the case reported the circumstances to his general and asked permission to challenge Alfieri, who by virtue of his office enjoyed the status of gentleman, to a duel, the station said.

A court of honor was summoned, as is customary. The court forbade the duel, "due to the fact that the offender of the honor of the officer is a representative of a foreign power with which we are allied at the present moment, and the duel if allowed might affect our relations with that country."

The court said the officer had done his duty by thrashing Alfieri, reporting the case to his superiors, suing for divorce and asking for a court of honor.

"Though the court of honor refuses permission for the duel," the verdict said, "compelled to such an attitude by the war situation, it is aware of the fact that this settlement does not give satisfaction to the officer and suggests that Alfieri should be asked to leave his post."

The German army radio station said that only great diplomatic pressure prevented the court from giving permission for a challenge and forcing Alfieri to fight or flee.

Alfieri a veteran of the Fascist castor oilers and sandbaggers, is known as "the charmer." He is 56 years old. His claim to fame is

THREE INJURED IN ACCIDENTS

Workman's Leg Amputated, Another Loses Fingers In Mishaps.

Two persons are in General hospital today with serious injuries received in industrial accidents and a Mansfield child was treated for an injured arm caught in a washing machine wringer.

Martin Welker, 55, of 151 Ford street, suffered loss of his right leg when it was caught in a cinder crusher yesterday afternoon while he was working at the garage of state highway maintenance department. Acetylene torches were used for 20 minutes to cut away the steel guard on the crusher in order to free his leg. He was removed to General hospital where the leg was amputated below the knee. His condition is said to be "satisfactory."

Russell Davis, 19, Mansfield R. D. 2, was injured when his left hand was caught in a cable and pulley at 7:45 a. m. today at the Hughes-Keenen company. Rushed to the hospital two of his fingers were immediately amputated and the remaining two will probably be lost, according to hospital attaches. His condition was described as "fair."

Welker, who is the brother-in-law of Charles H. Hebel, city street commissioner, was crushing frozen cinders in the machine when a large solid lump jarred the machine's platform causing Welker to lose his balance. His leg became fastened between the rollers and he could not be freed until the torch was used on the metal guards. He began work for the highway department in 1939. Hebel, who has an artificial leg, resigned as stone crusher while he was employed by the state highway department. A brother of Welker's also lost his leg in an industrial accident.

Edward Wagoner, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Wagoner, 57 South Franklin avenue, suffered severe bruises on his left arm and hand when he was caught in the wringer of a washing machine at his home yesterday. Taken to the hospital he was treated and later released.

Ex-Mansfielder Drives FDR On Surprise Liberian Visit

When President Roosevelt visited the Firestone rubber plantation and neighboring villages in Africa, it was a former Mansfielder in charge of the tour.

George Seybold, who is now the general manager of the Firestone plantation in Liberia, is a native of this city and brother of Ethel Seybold, 393 South Main street and O. L. Seybold, 524 South Main street.

Seybold went to the Firestone plantation in the land of rubber and straw-thatched huts about six or eight years ago, according to his sister, after having been associated with the U. S. Rubber company in various locations in the tropics including Sumatra and Singapore. Before that he was a lieutenant in the Filipino constabulary in the Philippine Islands.

He has made only one visit to Mansfield since his association with Firestone, his sister said, and that was in 1939 or '40. He left Mansfield more than three decades ago to attend Yale university from which he was graduated in 1909.

BOB HOPE SUED

Sister-in-Law Wants $2,300 For Helping Collect Gags.

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—Comedian Bob Hope today found himself the object of a $2,300 law suit—an amount his sister-in-law claimed was due her for helping make him the funny man he is.

Mrs. Marie Towns Hope, the sister-in-law, told the court that Hope owed her $2,300 for secretarial work.

She claimed she helped collect, classify and catalogue thousands of gags and jokes for Hope and his "six or seven gag writers." For this, Mrs. Hope complained, she was paid only $12.50 weekly.

The comedian, who did not appear in court, filed a cross complaint, seeking $1,425 which he said he lent to the sister-in-law and his brother, F. James Hope, Los Angeles business man.

Evacuees Available for Work in Ohio Industries, on Farms.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— War industries and farms, harried by manpower shortages in Ohio, Michigan and West Virginia today were offered a new source of supply—10,000 loyal evacuees of Japanese ancestry, held in western relocation camps.

Employers seeking to avail themselves of the new manpower source will receive full cooperation of a new WRA office set up to facilitate placements on farms and factories, said Harold S. Fistere, who heads the office.

Seize 6,000; Yanks Menace Rommel Flight

Allies Believed to Be Driving Wedge Between Axis In Tunisia.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Field Marshal Rommel's narrow escape corridor in Tunisia was reported menaced today by an American thrust toward the Gulf of Gabes, but continued uncertain weather appeared to be limiting the scale of action on the entire front.

The full significance of the American push, which the Algiers radio said had reached Maknassy, only 33 miles from the eastern Tunisian coast, was obscured by lack of news concerning the development from Allied headquarters in North Africa.

The possibility the Allies had launched a determined effort to drive a wedge between Rommel and Col. Gen. Von Arnim's forces to the north was given color, however, by a combination of reports from various sources indicating something big was brewing.

Among these was a 48-hour conference at Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters bringing together Gen. George G. Marshall, U. S. army chief of staff, and Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, British Middle East commander, along with other high America and British officers.

Also fitting into the picture were persistent Axis broadcasts varying from rumors of big Allied troop concentrations along the front to reports the Allies already had launched an offensive.

A trust to Maknassy would place the Allied Tunisian armies within 75 miles of the Mareth line, where some of Rommel's forces are reported to have taken refuge, and 200 miles from the British Eighth army snapping at the heels of his rearguards in Tripolitania.

The Italian high command declared Axis troops had captured new positions in Tunisia, omitting details, and said counter-attacks were mounted against the continuing pressure of the British Eighth army in western Tripolitnaia.

Russians Say 3,000 Germans Killed In Fighting Along Voronezh Front.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—Picked Russian units, starting to turn the Voronezh front into a second great trap, have captured 6,000 men, including three generals, and killed 3,000 within a few hours, a high command communique announced today.

Surrounding the enemy force, one of many threatened with disaster on the Voronzeh front midway between Moscow and Rostov, tank formations, troops of the famous Guards regiments, and cavalrymen drove in to the attack.

The noon communique said the entire Axis force of 9,000 men was liquidated.

One Russian unit, the noon communique said, had liberated 33 inhabited localities, villages and district centers, within two days in an advance westward toward Kursk, on the Kharkov-Moscow railroad from Voronezh.

This unit took more than 300 prisoners and captured a large quantity of war spoils.

The grim work of cleaning out the first gigantic Russian man trap, at Stalingrad, continued relentlessly and it was indicated that there could hardly be more than 5,000 men remaining of the 220,000 encircled and smashed there.

(The Moscow radio, heard in London, said German Lieut. Gen. Repke had surrendered at Stalingrad with all that remained of the entire German 297th division.

(Ilya Ehrenbourg, famous Russian war correspondent, wrote in a special dispatch to the London News Chronicle that Gen. Friedrich von Paulus, German commander in chief at Stalingrad, was said by German pris-Gen. Hibner, who in turn also command over to one Lieut. Gen. Hibnerf, who in turn also deserted his men and fled by airplane.)

Yesterday's gain brought the Russians within seven miles of Kropotkin, southernmost of three railroad junctions through which the Axis troops might hope to

SILENCED? Doubt Hitler to Make 10th Anniversary Speech

(By United Press)

LONDON—Berlin radio announced today that Paul Joseph Goebbels, German propaganda minister, would address a public meeting tomorrow, 10th anniversary of the Nazi accession to power, and that Field Marshal Hermann Goering, Nazi No. 2 and air force chief would address the German armed forces by radio.

It was announced that Goebbels at the end of his own speech at 4 p. m. (11 a. m. EWT) would read a proclamation by Hitler, who in the past made the anniversary the occasion of one of the most fulsome of his yearly speeches.

Thus the inference was left open that unless by surprise—as had happened once before during the war—Adolf Hitler, confronted by an inexorable advance of Russia's Red army and the imminent liquidation of an army of 220,000 men sacrificed to his glory at Stalingrad, would not speak.

But always before Hitler had had occasion to bluster and boast—in 1940, the first war year, that he was going to crush Britain and France, and with them "old Chamberlain," as he called the late British prime minister, and Edouard Daladier of France; in 1941 that the United States had better be good or he would sink all its ships, and that Germany would defeat Britain within the year; in 1942 that, though Germany was

BATTLE: U. S. Damages 5 Jap Ships In Solomons Fighting

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—In two furious days of fighting in the Solomon islands, the navy reported today, American forces damaged two Japanese cargo ships, two destroyers and a tanker, destroyed ten enemy planes and killed 36 Japanese troops in operations which resulted in the capture of an enemy command post.

Three Japanese were taken prisoner.

One of the cargo ships which was damaged probably sank. Four American planes were reported missing.

Shuffling on tiptoes, with her heels out, she made the couch near Hobey's chair, and sat down on it.

"Sometimes I wonder why I ever get up. Now if you'll just throw me a cigaret . . ."

He brought her one, and put an ash tray on the floor where she could reach it. The ash tray was heaped high with stubs, and he showed it to her, scolding her filially. "Take a look at that, will you? Say, listen, what goes on here? I thought the doctor cut you down to ten a day"

"That's what the doctor thought."

"Well, but no fooling, you ought to do what he says, once in a while. Maybe he knows."

"And how about your voice?"

"What about it?"

"Supposing you spoil it, then what'll you do?"

"What's this, a jest?" said Ruby. "Then I'll do all right, the same as now. Who's going to know the difference, and how would they?"

That concluded that. She blew an indomitable trumpet of smoke and added in an altered tone, "Sit down again, there, honey. I want to talk to you."

"Yeah, by the way. They told me."

Ruby looked suddenly solemn. "There's a couple of things I want to take up with you," she said. "And one of 'em you'll like, and the other you won't like. In the first place . . "

Here she halted, and obviously changed her mind about the order of her revelations; and her next remark admitted that she had. "Well, no," she said. "We'll get to the other in a minute. Let's talk about your own self, first of all. Listen, it's nearly September, do you realize that? And I've been doing some thinking and planning—it's an annual thing with me, like the equinox —and one of the things I'm going to do before I'm a day older is raise your pay Thirty a week, from now on"

Hobey said "But that's double"

"Ah a mathematician! The boy Euclid So what if it is?"

"Listen, now" he said earnestly, "that's crazy, and you know it. It's 'way too much with my keep and all You don't need to do anything like that—"

"I do so" said Ruby crossly. "Hush your face I need to get right with my conscience. I've been underpaying you from the start—some silly idea, I had about being afraid of spoiling you, or something—and it doesn't make any sense, and it isn't right, and it's got to stop. Why should I gyp you just because I love you? When Bill was my chauffeur, I paid him thirty-five —and what did Bill do beside chauff? And look at all you do besides. I tell you, you're being robbed."

"Look at all I get besides, that he didn't. I live here, don't I? But if you're going to raise me to thirty, then I'm going to move out and pay my own keep It's time I did, anyhow," he continued as Ruby showed signs of vociferous interruption. "After all, I wasn't supposed to settle down here for good"

"Who says you weren't?"

"Why, you did. We both agreed on it Don't you remember beforehand—"

"Oh, that," said Ruby carelessly. "But that's all changed now. That was because living here was another of those things I was afraid might spoil you, or make life too easy for you—well, and instead, look what's happened. You work like a one-man chain gang, and nothing's too much trouble, and you've got us all so spoiled we don't know what we'd do if you weren't around; I really don't."

"Yeah, it'd be tough."

"Well, it would."

"I'd be around just the same, anyhow," Hobey said. "I wouldn't move far. Just down the street a little way, and take a room."

* * *

Ruby looked at the ceiling for a moment, and then she looked at him. "Oh," she said. "You kind of want to, don't you? Well, that's different."

"Who said anything about wanting to? I just said it was time I did."

"All right, you're going to move," she said, as if it had been settled all along. "Move tomorrow, or your next day off, or whenever you find a place. Matter of fact, I guess I'm for it, the more I think of it Well, and now I'll tell you the other thing I had to tell you"

"The one I won't like."

"Maybe you won't mind it, after, all," Ruby said, hopefully. "Maybe not so much. First let me ask you this, just to check my memory: your Rosalie in Boston —her maiden name was Hastings wasn't it?"

"That's right."

"And the man she married was named Phillip Strange."

Hobey nodded, and some of the burning inquiry went out of his eyes, and now he looked down at his hands instead of Ruby.

"If it's about him," he said, "then I already know it, I guess. I mean if it's about how he shot himself—cleaning his gun. My sister wrote me a letter all about that, and sent me the piece from some Boston paper"

"You didn't tell me."

"I was thinking about it, first," he said slowly "I didn't know myself, till lately. It was only here a month or so ago I got the letter. It happened 'way back last March . . ."

That fact struck him as he stated it, and his glance flashed up at Ruby suddenly "How did you hear about it, though?" he asked her. "Did you just find out?"

"Well, you see there's a little more to it now" Ruby said. "It was in all the New York papers this morning—I saved you some clippings. It seems she was married again yesterday to somebody named Harker. Bailey Harker. He's a broker down in Wall Street"

"I see," Hobey said.

His voice was toneless Unsurprised. He stared down at his hands again.

"Yesterday," he said, after a minute. Yesterday had been the 28th of August. He could see it in his mind, like one of those big-numeraled pages from a calendar; and he heard himself say, "That was pretty soon. Since March, I mean." He counted it. "Five months."

"Well, nearly six," said Ruby.

There was another little pause Presently Hobey said. "Where is a paper?"

"I saved you the clippings," she told him again. "They're downstairs in my desk, in the middle drawer, if you want to go and get them"

It seemed too far, at the moment. He said, "What did you say his name was? Harker?"

Ruby repeated it in full. "I recognized it," she said further "That was what caught my eye in the first place—that name Bailey Harker was a great college football star, before the war Well, and then it seems he ran up quite a fancy war record for himself—decorations and everything. There was a lot about that in all the writeups."

Ruby looked at him compassionately, and she reached out and caught his hand and squeezed it hard; and she said, "Ah, darlin'—don't. Don't mind like that. Why should you, after all? It's nothing to you. She's not the only girl in the world. Forget about her. You can do it and you've got to do it. I mean, even if none of this had happened."

"Yeah, I know," he said. "That's right."

It was easy to say, he thought wretchedly. Might as well say it.

He moved into bachelor quarters the following week-end. The place was a one-room apartment in a converted brownstone house in the next block It was a corner room, on the third floor front, with windows looking south and west, a cross-current of air, a high, old-fashioned ceiling, a little adjoining alcove that was almost like another room, and a bath that didn't adjoin but wasn't far. His rooms had too many doors, and the landlady explained that one of them connected with another room, a back one, which some day he might want to take too, thus having a little suite Meanwhile he was well pleased with things as they were. He even liked the wallpaper, which was fresh and light and new, and adorned with morning glories like the ones that grew wild on the island.

He moved in on Saturday, and got settled on Sunday afternoon. Everybody came over from Ruby's to help; some of them even showed such unexpected forethought as to bring tacks and tack hammers, and even some bottles of beer. He had taken the place unfurnished, because the attic at Ruby's house was choked with extra furniture, and she had given him his choice of that. It was a rather job-lot collection but it was complete, and the pieces were comfortable.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

The first thing I did when my father had gone was to rise, stretch my arms up as far as I could, flexing the fingers, then bring them down again.

Dicky laughs at me when I tell him this rests my brain cells and enables me to think more clearly.

I rarely had faced so oddly difficult a problem as that my father had just given me, and as I again relaxed in my chair, I felt a sense of utter futility.

To pretend that Mary had had a sudden accident, or had been seized with an illness grave enough to keep her from her role in the theater, would have been easy if the public or the other members of the cast were the only ones who must be deceived

But Olga and Olina were "something else again," as Mary would say They are used to illness, and they have keen minds and quick, observant eyes. I knew that Mary, when told of the scheme, would be so delighted at the chance to get away from the hateful proximity of Stephen Redfield that she would act the new part planned for her with all her rare skill, but the symptoms of illness would never deceive Olga or Olina. No, I decided, I must stage an accident.

Must Be Sprained Ankle.

Recalling accident cases with which I had been familiar, I discarded burns, fractures and concussions, which would all require too elaborate camouflage.

A really bad sprained ankle, on which a physician could declare she must not walk for an indefinite time, was the only possible accident, I decided, but how to stage it I could not yet see

There was no use in trying to have my brain cells work any further on it now. I had reached the point of mental fag where I was completely stripped of ideas or any power to summon one from the depths of my sub-consciousness.

It is one of my beliefs that I can think better lying down, relaxed and letting my brain roam free. So, knowing that my father might be tied up indefinitely with Philip Veritzen and that Georges in the next room would be in Halloran's hands for a long time, I changed into a negligee and snuggled down on the couch which had been wheeled back into the living room after Noel and Mary had awakened from the drugged sleep into which Milner had plunged them.

Lying quiescent and making no effort to think I soon found my eyes closing and drifted off into a light doze

From this I was startled to complete wakefulness by an incoherent shout from my bedroom, where Halloran was removing the false wig and beard from Georges, young fugitive King of Trees. The next instant the shout took form in coherent words.

"Who are you? My God!" Halloran exclaimed.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, January 30

A particularly lively and possibly exciting day, on which all depends as to the results on the safe and sane manner in which important objectives and programs are manipulated While there is a breaking away from old, stagnant conditions, with a sudden impetus to get a swift start in the opposite direction, yet enduring and stable culminations would be undermined by erratic turbulent, emotional or peculiar tactics. High ambitions may enhance credit and financial standing

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the eve of a year of the fulfillment of high hopes and wishes. Use the social or friendly influence in bewildering circumstances

A child born on this day should have such versatility and high ambitions that it may be saved from curious, surprising or erratic circumstances by sane methods, poise and the aid of influential associates in business or social life.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

AND THEY SAVE US, TOO

Bridge players have a great way of seeking consolation by telling friends how their partners have wrecked them. How many make a practice of telling how their partners have saved them from disasters? If you can think of one, you should nominate him for the Hall of Fame, or something else very special, as he will be the first of his kind.

	♠ Q 6 5 ♥ 10 5 2 ♦ Q 9 8 4 3 ♣ Q 5

(Dealer: South Both sides vulnerable)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	2 ♠	Pass

South nearly fell off his chair when North passed that bid of 3-Diamonds. He meant it as an ace-showing cue-bid, but his partner thought he was trying to show a hand made up of five spades and four cards each in the red suits Even at that, perhaps North should have shifted to 3-Spades, but he gave as his reason for not doing so the fact that he was sure South would then have gone to 4-Spades, as he admitted he would have.

It turned out that 4-Spades would have been defeated definitely, probably two tricks, whereas the 3-Diamonds got made, with the loss of only two tricks in each minor. North's pass of the 3-Diamonds really saved South from being set. Nobody could call it a good and sound call, but it resulted in the pair winning the rubber, as the next deal produced just enough more points to make a game with the partial score.

But do you believe South is going around telling how North saved his bacon? If so, you have another guess coming.

Tomorrow's Problem.

After ruffing the second spade, how should South play this deal for 5-Clubs.

Maybe the answer, for the one-feature proponents, lies in the curtailment of raw film stocks in Hollywood. With war prosperity, our town is riding a crest and any old picture makes money.

FLYNN ATTACK TRIAL DRAWING TO ITS CLOSE

Actor Leaves Stand After 3-Hour Cross Examination on Repeated Denials.

(By International News Service)

LOS ANGELES—Errol Flynn, unshaken by three hours of cross examination in his firm denials that he attacked two teen age girls, returned to the role of spectator today as his trial moved into the final stages with the calling of rebuttal witnesses.

The handsome screen hero, denying in every major detail the claims of Peggy Larue Satterlee, 16, and blond Betty Hansen, 17, that he assaulted them, stepped from the witness box as calm and poised as he was two days ago when he embarked upon the role of his own starring witness.

Chief Defense Counsel Jerry Geisler immediately rested his case, and Deputy District Attorneys John Hopkins and Thomas V. Cochrane said they expected the rebuttal testimony to be concluded today.

The prospect thus was raised that the case would be given to the jury of nine women and three men some time Wednesday, after an expected two days of argument by opposing counsel and the instructions to be given by Superior Judge Leslie E. Still.

The jurors were amply armed with photographs of Flynn's yacht, Sirocco. Both defense and prosecution introduced photographs and sketches of the yacht and its sleeping arrangements, while the state submitted more than a dozen pictures of the home of Fred McEvoy, British sportsman, in which Miss Hansen said she was attacked, last Sept. 27.

Nattily garbed in a brown double-breasted suit, soft white shirt and brown-and-white checked tie, Flynn retold steadfastly under cross examination the same version of the cruise to Santa Catalina island and the party at McEvoy's home that he first told on direct examination by Giesler.

Hopkins failed in his efforts to shake Flynn in his story that Miss Satterlee left the yacht in a pleasant mood, disturbed only at the prospect of returning to a home where there was "no work, no money."

"She seemed very grateful for having had a nice time," Flynn said under cross examination.

SPEAKS TONIGHT

Y. W. Secretary Interned By Japs Dinner Speaker.

Approximately 300 women will hear Miss Marion Dudley, a Y. W. C. A. executive in South China for six years before her internment after Pearl Harbor by the Japanese, speak tonight at the annual dinner meeting of the Young Women's Christian association in the Park Avenue Baptist church.

Miss Dudley's subject will be "China At War," and she will draw her material from her extensive experience with the Chinese people as well as from her life during the nine months she spent in the Stanley internment camp under the guard of the Japanese.

The program beginning at 6:15 p. m. will feature folk dancing and other entertainment by the Beta Gamma club girls and a group of the "Saturday House" children. Mrs. Irl Fischer, president of the Y. W. C. A. board, will preside at the dinner. Mrs. Wallace Campbell will serve as program chairman. Rev. A. L. Linder, pastor of Park Avenue Baptist church, will give the invocation.

SUES TO GET WAGER LOSSES

Man Charged With Robbing Bookie Strikes Back.

YOUNGSTOWN—(AP)—A man charged with robbing an alleged bookie agent of $1,500 at gun point last Septemer has sued to collect $2,107 allegedly lost in horse race wagers.

The suit was filed by John Keenan against Leo "Dutch" Manley, operator of a so-called "news agency." Keenan charges that he wagered $2,282 on horse races with Manley last August and September and won only $175. Last Sept. 26 Manley was held up by two men and robbed of $1,500.

Police halted the bandit car a few minutes later and captured Keenan and a companion.

NEFFNER WEIGHS OUSTER FIGHT

Considers Legal Action on Hummel Order Removing Him From Ohio Job.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—George M. Neffner indicated today he might take legal action in an attempt to retain the position of editor and statistician in the secretary of state's office, which he has held 16 years.

Edward J. Hummel of Cincinnati, who became secretary of state Jan. 11, announced yesterday Neffner's services would terminate tomorrow and that Fred Snyder of Springfield had been named to the newly-created post of executive secretary to take over part of Neffner's duties.

Other duties of Neffner's office will be given to various employes, Hummel said. Neffner is under Civil Service and receives $5,000 annually. Hummel said Snyder would get $4,000 a year and would not be a classified employe.

Hummel notified the Civil Service commission of his action and informed Neffner he was exercising his legal right to exempt the position from classified service because the duties to be assigned Snyder would be of an "intimate and fiduciary character."

Neffner said he had expected to be retained and had made no plans for other employment.

Originally appointed in 1927, Neffner has served continuously except for a nine-month period in 1940 when he replaced Secretary of State Earl Griffith of Mt. Gilead upon the latter's death.

MAJOR ZIMMERMAN ASSIGNED TO COMMAND CALIFORNIA AIR BASE

MAJOR J. L. ZIMMERMAN

Major James L. Zimmerman, veteran Mansfield flier, today had assumed command of the Army Air base at Blythe, Calif.

He has been stationed in the far west for several months, commanding air bases at Pueblo, Colo., and Yakima, Wash.

Veteran of the first World war, Major Zimmerman, an engineer at the Mansfield Westinghouse plant, was called back for active duty in the flying forces in March, 1941. He was a lieutenant overseas in the other World war and recently was advanced to major.

Following his return to active duty two years ago he served with a traveling board of the Aviation Cadet Procurement service and then as president of the cadet board at Bowman Field, Ky.

In Mansfield, he and Mrs. Zimmerman lived at 189 Cline avenue. She is with him now in California.

Their son, William, student at Purdue university, recently qualified as an aviation cadet with a high score.

BETTER SHOWING

Sales Tax Receipts During Period Still Off $1,649.

While Richland county's sales tax receipts made a little better showing in the second week of January than during the first week, collections for the week ending Jan. 16 were still $1,649 under the corresponding period last year.

Total receipts for the second week of 1943 were $8,090 as compared with $9,739 for the corresponding week of 1942.

Collections in the county for the first half of this month totaled $17,522, a drop of nearly $7,000 under the same period last year. Most of the decline was in the first week of January.

Ohio receipts are already $461,160 below an identical period last year.

BRITISH SHIP SUNK

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The navy revealed today that a medium sized British merchant vessel was sunk by a submarine in mid-October in the South Atlantic off the coast of Africa.

SHOT DIRECTED FROM AIRPLANE

Admiral Says Jean Bart Was Destroyed By Radio-Shelling.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A radio-directed salvo from an American battleship 26 miles away destroyed beyond repair the resisting French battleship Jean Bart during the North African invasion, Rear Admiral Stanford C. Hooper has revealed.

"As the first blast from our big guns, 26 miles away, struck the resisting French battleship, an observation plane flashes back the word of a direct hit on the deck, a damaging but not a fatal blow," he declared. "A slight change in elevation was signaled for. The next salvo struck the side of the ship at the waterline, smashing her hull beyond repair. Radio directed and reported the destruction."

Up and Down THE STREET

In the auditorium of Mees 'all on the Capital university campus hangs a colorful military service flag and roster erected in memory of nearly 300 graduates and students now serving in the armed forces. Beneath the flag on the pages of the glass enclosed book on which the names of men and women in service are inscribed is that of a single Mansfielder, Richard Samsel, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Samsel, 173 Western avenue. The roster, revised each week in an effort to keep it up to date, along with the flag will be preserved as a permanent record in the history of Capital.

Motorists along U. S. 30-S out Ontario way had visions of valuables dance in their minds last night when they saw dozens of shiny cans, along with broken glass, strewn along the highway right-of-way for several miles. Surely some truck had spilled off produce as it sped along, they would conjecture, while slowing to retrieve the lost articles. Part of this theory was right, but it must have been a salvage truck, since all the cans were found to be emptied. A few patriotic residents swept the broken glass from the highway, and a state highway truck was later called out to collect the debris.

An honor roll will adorn the lobby of the Mansfield Public Librahy shortly after the launching of the Victory Book campaign, Feb. 1. The poster will denote the progress of the campaign as to the number of local clubs and organizations participating 100 per cent in the drive by the contribution of one book per member. All organizations will be asked to set aside one meeting before the drive closes, March 5, and at that time collect books from the membership in an effort to obtain better reading material for the armed forces and at the same time conserve transportation on the part of campaign workers.

MAP CHANGES

AAA Township Committees Hear of New Plans.

Changes in the 1943 AAA farm program were outlined today to township committeemen in Richland county at an all-day session at the county AAA headquarters on North Diamond street. Each township has five committee members.

Preparation of the manpower inventory sheets which have been distributed to farm operators also was discussed by Guy Taylor, county AAA chairman and War board head, Howard Stone, committee vice chairman.

This year's government crop program urges farmers to produce more food crops, paying them benefits for stepping up production of materials needed by the army and Allied countries.

END COMPLAINT, FARMERS TOLD

Green Admonishes Them To Prepare For Sacrifice.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Farmers today weighed the words of Perry L. Green, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation, whose speech, at a symposium on 1943 crop quotas, closed the thirty-first annual farmers week at Ohio State university.

Green admonished farmers to prepare for sacrifices and to forget their complaints about labor and other groups. He said that the solution to achieving production goals was to remember Agriculture Secretary Claude Wickard's prophesy that food will wis the war and peace.

SEEKS $10,380

Plaintiff Files Suit Following Auto Mishap In November.

Suit for $10,380 damages was filed by James A. Smith against C. O. Bowman in common pleas court yesterday as a result of personal injuries he said he received in an automobile accident on the Bowman street road Nov. 4, 1941.

Alleging that he was permanently injured and unable to do remunerative work since the accident, Smith further affirms, in his action, that an operation and hospitalization will be necessary to restore him to health. He enumerates medical expense already involved in treatment.

STETTINIUS GOES BEFORE HOUSE PANEL

Expected to Deny Sending of Powderpuffs and Rayon Hose to Allies.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The house foreign affairs committee today expects to hear from Lend-Lease Administrator Edward R. Stettinius, jr., his answer to charges that "beer, rayon hose and powderpuffs" have been sent abroad in lend-lease ships.

Stettinius will be the first witness at hearings on a bill to extend the lend-lease act for another two years. Critics of the lend-lease administration awaited the eve of the hearings to denounce it on the house floor. Rep. Robert F. Jones, R., O., touched off the fireworks with the following charges:

1. That beer, rayon hose and powderpuffs were sent abroad in lend-lease ships, while "we can't even send cookies" to our soldiers because of the shortage of shipping space.
2. That lend-lease agreements were "forced on countries that didn't want them."
3. That there was no guarantee airplanes shipped to foreign countries under lend-lease would not be used "in cut-throat competition against us after the war."
4. That secret lend-lease agreements "project themselves into the future—far after the war."

Oscar Cox, attorney for the lend-lease administration, quickly denied the charges:

"There has been no beer, and no powderpuffs sent abroad under lend-lease. A negligible amount of rayon stockings were sent to Africa, in complying with a request from Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. The request was for cotton stockings, but a few rayons were included in one lot because a dealer declined to break his stock."

Chairman Sol Bloom, D., N. Y., of the foreign affairs committee termed the criticism "ill-advised and obviously for political purposes."

Jones said he would "place all corroborative material in the hands of the committee." He said he had evidence concerning other alleged irregularities but that it was not conclusive and he did not wish "to stick my neck out on it at this time."

Draft Physical Examinations to Becomes Tougher

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Men aged 18 through 37 who will be drafted under the new combined calls for all armed services which take effect Monday will face tougher physical examinations than those now given at army induction centers.

The new physical standards have been agreed upon by the army, navy marine corps and coast guard. When the combined call program was announced by the selective service bureau of war manpower commission yesterday the announcement described them as "higher" than those of the army.

Men meeting the new physical standards will be apportioned among the various forces, but all those rejected for failure to meet the new standards after examination by a joint army-navy medical board will not be automatically deferred. Instead the army can take those registrants whose minor physical defects make them acceptable for limited services, or any service they are considered able to perform under the army's former standards.

Registrants will be given an opportunity to express a preference for service in any of the forces.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Dear Rex: How many times in your golfing career have you heard that old saying, "All golfers are crazy"? I hate to use myself as an example when I really ought to stick up for the participants in this great pastime, but I'm afraid they are right, although I sort of enjoy the thought.

To start the story, I am entitled to three 24-hour passes a month. When these passes come around, I usually borrow a set of old rusty clubs, ride 25 miles over rough, jungle roads on a G. I. truck to the nearest golf course, and bat the ball around all day.

It sure helps to get your mind off things. But that isn't in line with the story. Just the truck ride is bad enough to go through, just for a game of golf.

Anyway, last week, to play in a golf match with a camp team, I took the usual truck ride of 25 miles, borrowed the same old rusty clubs, then added on another trip of 50 miles in an old moth-eaten train, and played all day in the rain.

I think now those people are right about crazy golfers in my case, don't you? But I'd do it again any time.

Maybe it's that bug they talk about now and then. Needless to say, I lost one down, and my team also lost.

* * *

I have changed my position down here, and (censored, but good).

Young John Columbus, who was quite active in Y. M. C. A. basketball, is down here and has been over to see me several times.

I had a hard time convincing a few Georgia guys that the best football is played in Ohio, but I think we've got that all straightened out now.

Tell Ira Kochheiser to tell those Athletic Supplies to get on the ball. I'm expecting better things from those young fellows.

Johnny Burns.

Lt. John V. Burns,
Hq. 88th CA (AA),
Care Postmaster,
New Orleans, La.

It's good to know that the managing man, who used to pilot Athletic Supply sport teams, and who finished third in the Richland county golf tournament of 1941, is still banging the ball around.

And of course all golfers are crazy. That's the first requisite. If they aren't crazy, they aren't golfers. And that you may lay to.

I'm merely surprised it took Johnny so long to find it out, and then by way of army truck and all day rain, somewhere down there, where he's stationed.

He should try the moonlight golf they play at Coolridge some time. J. B. Moke sank a 30-foot putt from off the top edge of No. 1 green at 12 o'clock one night last summer.

Barney Ross Wins More Marine Honor

PITTSBURGH — (UP) — Barney Ross, ex-welterweight champion who only a few weeks ago was acclaimed for his heroism with the marines in the Southwest Pacific had achieved distinction of another sort today.

Ross recently returned to the ring to knock out a 215 pound Samoan boxing idol and in return, was offered a native chieftain's daughter in marraige and a chance to share the tribal crown.

The story was told in a letter received here written by Ben Malamude, former Pittsburgh basketball player, now a pharmacist second class in the navy.

Malamude said Ross reluctantly agreed to take on the Samoan who "was giving our army and navy heavyweights a going over." He returned to action, apparently, only because of the prestige of the marines was at stake, Malamude wrote.

"They used 16 ounce gloves," he said, "but Barney had him on the deck 11 times before putting him away in the sixth round.

"Ross became the hero then and one of the native chiefs offered him his daughter in marraige and half of his crown."

Says Pitt Grid Goes Big Time

Stadium Bondholders Protect Investment.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK —(UP)— Despite denials on all sides in the Smoky City, we can tell you now that the University of Pittsburgh has returned to big-time football.

The hiring of Clark Shaughnessy and his "T" formation away from the University of Maryland is a definite indicator, but we can assure you that if Shaughnessy had not been hired by Pitt some other big-name coach would have been brought in.

From an unimpeachable source we learn that there are two major reasons why Pitt's Panthers will strive for the football supremacy they once enjoyed.

The first reason is that the bond holders of Pitt stadium, who include some mighty prominent American names, demand that Pitt football be conducted in such fashion that the price of the bonds remain at least constant. In 1938 those bonds were priced at $870. They sank to $660 in 1941, after Jock Sutherland had resigned as coach. What they are worth now we do not know. But our informant says that the bond holders are mighty sore about the current price.

The second reason for Pitt's return to big time football is the Pitt alumni, who, we understand have been raising all kinds of hogskin hades because of the de-emphasis of the gridiron pastime.

But any consideration of Pitt's football future must encompass Pitt's relations with the Big Ten or Western conference. At the present writing, Pitt has an "advisory connection" with the Big Ten. This means that if the school maintains a proper de-emphasis of football, and hews to certain standards of athletic scholarship, Pitt can match its football teams with Big Ten outfits.

Four years ago Dr. Jock Sutherland quit as head coach of Pitt and later turned to the pro game. Jock did this because of the lily-white program that Pitt, then one of America's foremost football factories, was launching. Charley Bowser replaced Sutherland, and under him the "purified" school worked with the Big Ten. Pitt football was deflated considerably.

The Panther game was deflated but Pitt played in the polite society of the Big Ten. In 1941, for example, Pitt played four games against Big Ten teams—Purdue, Michigan, Minnesota and Ohio State—all of whom had pleasant afternoons with the clawless Panthers. Last season, Minnesota, Ohio State and Indiana romped over the Pittsburghers.

In other words Pitt, for years synonymous with top flight football, was buckling under to maintain its "advisory connection" with the Big Ten. It had to be a push-over. And this was bad. This caused a revolution among the alumni—to say nothing of the stadium bondholders. The important guys in both brackets knew that Pitt is the natural center for the abundant grid material in the region as well as a place for youngsters seeking a higher education.

The hiring of Shaughnessy may have been the result of a revolt against a Big Ten alliance. Or it may have been a smart move by the men at the Pitt front to gear the university's football machine in wartime so that it would be ready when peace comes to provide the most formidable and financially attractive unit in football history.

And when that time comes we predict that Pitt will raise up on its hind legs and say to the Big Ten, "Nertz!"

Ruling Given on Baseball Salaries

WASHINGTON —(UP)— The bureau of internal revenue has ruled that baseball clubs may grant salary increases to players on the basis of merit or service, provided such raises are within the club's established salary schedule.

Under the bureau ruling, it was learned today, clubs must file a schedule of salaries paid in the first or last year and the range from the lowest to the highest salary in that schedule will be accepted by the bureau as the club's "established salary schedule."

Players may be given increases within that schedule for merit or service without prior permission from the bureau.

The bureau has jurisdiction over all salaries in excess of $5,000 a year, and those under $5,000 paid to unorganized executive, administrative or professional persons.

WEST POINT, N. Y.—(UP)— Manager Leo Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers will act as part-time advisory coach of the Army baseball team during March and the first few days of April.

The appointment, good only while the Dodgers are training here, does not affect Durocher's draft status. He has been called up for physical examination—usual preliminary to re-classification.

Dive In and Start Swimming

"BE IN GOOD CONDITION . . . dive in . . . and start swimming." That's the formula for being a good long distance swimmer, according to Marvin Nelson, Fort Dodge, Iowa, Adonis who is recognized as the world's champion distance swimmer. Nelson gave out the info above at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station where he is a chief specialist with the job of teaching bluejackets a few tricks they may need some day if they are victims of ship sinkings. Nelson, who has captured five swimming championships and numerous minor events to the tune of $40,000, is best known for winning the Toronto marathon swim in 1930 and with it, $10,000 first place money.

Pep Goes After 59th Win In Row

NEW YORK—(AP)—Willie Pep goes after his 59th straight ring victory at Madison Square Garden tonight, and a goodly number of the 17,000 fans who are expected to witness the bid think there won't be quite enough Pep for the job.

The Hartford youngster, holder of the New York version of the world featherweight title, will be spotting Allie Stolz up to six pounds, and among the little fellows that's quite a bit.

Pep, although winning handily in taking the title from the venerable Chalky Wright in Pep's last appearance in the Garden, was no ball of fire from an entertainment standpoint, and Stolz also was no bargain in his last Garden appearance.

* * *

The explanation seems to be that it looks like anybody's fight, and that the expected capacity crowd, sensing an end to the Hartford lad's phenomenal winning streak wants to be in on the kill. The bookies have made it 5 to 6 and take your choice.

Stolz, if anything, is risking even more than Pep. He's risking the chance to stay up there with the top ranking lightweights.

Gil Dodds Faces Star Mile Field

NEW YORK — (UP) — Gilbert Dodds of the Boston A. A. National AAU indoor mile and outdoor 1500 meter champion, will face a field of six stellar milers in the feature Wanamaker mile, top event of the Millrose games in Madison Square Garden on Feb. 6.

* * *

A time of less than 4:14 was virtually assured for the Wanamaker since all of the entries have equalled or bettered that figure in competition.

They are: Ensign Walter Mehl, former Wisconsin star now at the Navy Pre-Flight training school at Iowa City and winner of the Wanamaker in 1941; Frank T. Dixon, New York University freshman star; James N. Rafferty, New York A. C., runner-up in the Wanamaker last year; Donald Burnham, Dartmouth; Earl Mitchell, Indiana.; LeRoy Schwarzkopf, Yale, and Dodds.

All except Mehl and Rafferty will be making their debuts in the Wanamaker, won by Leslie MacMitchell—now a navy ensign—last year.

SEES SERVICE TEAMS GOING BIG LEAGUE

CHICAGO—(INS)—Major leagues in all sports will be composed of service teams by 1944 if the war lasts that long, Lieut. Jim McMillen, former football star, vice president of the Chicago Bears and now officer in charge of athletics at Navy pier, predicted today.

"By this time next year college and professional rosters will have been depleted to such an extent that I see no likelihood of those teams being able to operate," McMillen said. "Then we in the athletic end of combat training will be faced with the obligation of helping to maintain morale among civilians, especially war workers, by supplying their competitive sports."

Tygers Tangle With Bellvue Saturday

Rivalry Boosts Game Interest; Only 3 Home Tilts Left On Card

MANSFIELD HIGH SCHOOL has only three home games remaining on its basketball schedule for this season, and one of them comes tomorrow night when the Tygers tangle with Bellevue, formerly coached by the Mansfield mentor, Vern Hoffman.

The Tyger-Bellevue series has developed into a real rivalry since Hoffman came to Mansfield, aided by some extra-curricular activity having nothing to do with basketball.

Two years ago the Bellevues were snowballed by some Mansfield kids who had not yet reached high school age, and the incident almost led to a free-for-all fight.

Last year at Bellevue, fans let the air out of all four tires on Hoffman's car in retaliation.

Hoffman has received three post-cards from Bellevue boys, asking if they should bring their brass knuckles along for tomorrow's game, but Vern has informed them that "fight has gone to war."

The Bellevues have promised to give the Tygers a trimming, and Hoffman fears his old school may have the stuff to do it. The squad includes six veterans of last year's Bellevue team which competed in the Sandusky tournament.

Two of the players Dudley and Green, were only freshmen then, but they scored 29 points between them when Bellevue defeated Willard 54-28 this sason. Mansfield won from Willard 33-24. Other veterans back from last year's tournament for Bellevue are Frost, a dead set-shot artist, Garber, Ruffing and Redd.

Bellevue also scored a 6-point victory over Norwalk, a team Mansfield barely edged 36-34. Oh, yes, Mansfield's tournament championship team eliminated Bellevue 39-22.

Hoffman has scouted the Bellevue club, and reports that the Tygers will have an advantage in height, but that their opponents are the best ball-handling team he has seen this season.

For the first time this season Mansfield will meet the opposing school in a reserve game preliminary, scheduled at 7 o'clock. Bellevue is bringing a squad of 25 players, having purchased a bus several years ago for the athletic department.

The big game is booked at 8:15 as usual.

Brinkerhoff and West Fifth each qualified three skaters for the Saturday show.

Recruiting Officers Kennedy and Duffy are scheduled to speak at a noon luncheon meeting Saturday of the Ohio division of the American Association of University Women at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Your Federal Income Tax

NO. 23

DEPRECIATION (PART 1)

Among the deductions allowed in arriving at net income for Federal income tax purposes is depreciation. Depreciation may be sustained in connection with property giving rise to rental income shown in item 6 of return. Form 1040, or property used in business or profession, the net profit (or loss) from which is shown in item 9. The property must, of course, be owned by the taxpayer.

As relates to Federal income taxes depreciation is an allowance for exhaustion, wear and tear of property used in a trade or business, or of property held for the production of income. The purpose underlying allowances for depreciation is to permit the taxpayer to recover over the useful life of the property the capital sum invested therein. The terms "used in trade or business" or "held for the production of income" would include property held for such purposes though actually not in use during the taxable year. Depreciation, deductions are not allowable on property used for personal purposes, such as one's residence or its furnishings, or automobile or pleasure craft. However, if a taxpayer moves out of his house and rents it, it would become a rental property upon which a depreciation deduction would be allowable; or if a taxpayer used his car in part for business purposes, then a portion of the depreciation on the car, depending upon the relative use for business purposes, would be allowable.

A distinction must be made between depreciation and what may be called fluctuation in value. In the case of an automobile, it is commonly said that once a car has been driven from a dealer's show room it becomes a secondhand car, and by that fact may lose a considerable amount of its value. However, only that part of the loss in value which is due to actual exhaustion, wear and tear in business use, during the year, may be deducted as depreciation.

A further requirement in determining depreciation is that the property must have a limited and determinable useful life in the trade or business. Land, for instance, upon which a building is erected, is not depreciable, since it has no determinable life, and in setting up depreciation on real estate, a segregation must be made between the cost or other basis for the land, and the cost or other basis for the buildings.

The length of useful life of a property is often a difficult matter of estimation. The useful life of a building, or a machine, the furniture used in a physician's office, a lawyer's professional library, or a tractor on a farm, depends on particular circumstances, including the character of the property and the character of its use. A well-built brick building may have a useful life of 50 years and a frame house 25 years, a piece of machinery 5 to 10 years, but in particular instances the useful life may vary considerably.

In depreciation deductions, the amount claimed must be supported by the data called for in Schedule J of the return Form 1040. This schedule requires a statement of the kind of property being depreciated, the date acquired, the cost or other basis used in computing depreciation, the depreciated value at the end of the year, the depreciation allowed or allowable in prior years, and the remaining cost or other basis to be recovered, as well as the estimated life used in accumulating depreciation and the estimated remaining life at the beginning of the year.

FILES REQUEST FOR $135,000

Shelby Mayor Submits Formal Application For Funds For Water Project.

SHELBY — Formal application for $135,000 to help finance the Municipal Water company improvement project today had been filed with federal officials by Mayor W. R. Morris.

The federal grants are needed to help finance a $165,000 project including the construction of a dam across the Black Fork branch of the Mohican river, installation of a 7,500-foot pipeline from a 50-million gallon upground storage reservoir to the water plant, and purchase of a settling basin for the company.

City council has appropriated $30,000 for the project from the Municipal Light company fund.

Tentative approval has been given the project by federal officials as no applications are issued to improvement jobs which do not come under the specifications set up by the federal agency.

Federal officials conferred with city officials and engineers of the H. P. Jones company here before the applications were sent to Mayor Morris for the project.

STOCKS HOLD IRREGULARLY HIGHER RANGE

National Retail Spending Drops Off 3 Per Cent From Year Ago.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Leading stocks maintained an irregularly higher range in today's early market transactions.

Up fractions at a fairly active opening were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Goodrich, Woolworth, Boeing, Postal Telegraph Preferred, Southern Railway and Yellow Truck.

The Bethlehem Steel report, which came after Thursday's close, was about in line with Wall Street expectations.

Merchandising issues were scrutinized as Dun & Bradstreet estimated retail spending for the nation as a whole in the current week was off 3 to 7 per cent from the comparable 1942 period.

GERMAN WHIPS ITALIAN ENVOY

Wounded Officer Finds Wife In Arms of Alfieri, Uses Lash.

that when Emperor Haile Selassie, with the Italians overrunning Ethiopia in search of easy conquest, appealed to the League of Nations, Alfieri organized a gang of Fascist toughs who from the league galleries booed and hooted the emperor.

The Gustave Siegfried Eins station identified the officer as Capt. Joachin Von Eiz, of the staff of a tank division in the German Afrika Korps, who returned to find his wife with "a man of southern type, half undressed." It named the officers of the honor court.

It said that the captain lashed Alfieri across the face several times with a horsewhip, threw him downstairs and threw his clothes after him.

"Alfieri must disappear," the station said. "The Italians should send us another ambassador. Unless Alfieri disappears very soon we shall forget that he is a representative of his majesty the king of Italy.

"Alfieri has continuously incited his government against Germany and has gone to bed with the wives of German officers at the front.

"We protest against this abuse of hospitality by the representative of a so-called friendly power which will betray us at the first possible occasion.

"Alfieri has submitted reports to Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister, emphasizing that the Italians can now ask from Germany anti-aircraft artillery, night fighter planes, troops and so forth, because in the Mediterranean we are entirely dependent strategically on Italy."

The Gustave Siegfried Eins station for many months has been broadcasting what it says is inside information of army developments inside Germany, including the dismissal of high officers in favor of Hitlerian yes men. It has often been proven accurate by later events.

escape, and the city was almost encircled.

A second powerful Russian army was within 18 miles of Tikhoretsk, 35 miles north-northwest of Kropotkin, the second junction point for escape.

This Russian army was less than 30 miles east of Kuschevka, 50 miles north of Tikhoretsk and 43 miles south of Rostov, third and last escape junction.

(The Moscow radio last night put the total of German killed and wounded in the last two months at more than 700,000—"more than the whole of Napoleon's army of invaders." At Borodino, the battle which permitted Napoleon to take Moscow, Napoleon had 130,000 men.)

The noon communique reported new gains on both the southern and North Caucasus fronts, where the railroad junctions below Rostov are threatened.

On the Voronezh front, the Russians had taken Kastornaya, 48 miles west of Voronezh and 83 miles east of Kursk, an important railroad junction where the Voronezh-Kursk and Valuiki-Yelets roads meet. Here the Russians were driving straight westward toward Kursk. Several other small towns and villages were taken.

On the southern front, the Russians had taken Kalinbolotskaya, 18 miles northeast of Tikhoretsk, among their other victories yesterday, and Ilinskaya, 39 miles southeast of Tikhoretsk in addition to other places.

Claim All Soviet Attacks Repulsed

(By Associated Press)

The German high command declared today all Russian "mass attacks" on the eastern front were repulsed yesterday, and German reserves thrown into the heavy fighting between the Donets and the Middle Don forced the Soviets back with heavy losses.

The Nazi communique, broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, said Axis forces, fighting "in hard and resolute defense," had carried out their movements as planned.

The trapped German troops before Stalingrad were said to have continued their resistance "despite the greatest privations and notwithstanding the enemy's superiority in numbers by many times."

Northwest of Voronezh the communique described heavy fighting, "full of vicissitude."

Sub Wolfpack Sinks Four U. S. Ships

(By Associated Press)

MIAMI, Fla.—Goaded apparently to desperation by ever-lengthening United States convoy routes, the Axis sent a wolfpack of submarines against an escorted fleet of merchant ships off the South American coast this month and blasted four American vessels to the bottom.

Twenty-five men were lost and 28 others were missing from the four craft. Some of the missing were believed safe. The sinkings raised to 608 the reported number of United Nations and neutral ships lost in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor.

It was the first wolfpack action reported in western Atlantic waters, and news of it, told here by survivors with navy permission, lent emphasis to warnings by high government officials that the submarine menace remains great. Wolfpack tactics have long been used in North Atlantic convoy lanes.

Release of news of this heavy torpedo assault was the first public acknowledgement by United States naval authorities that convoys were operating to South America, although Brazilian officials had mentioned them.

The attack came at night, survivors said at Miami.

The counter action by escort vessels and an army bomber cannot be described. The master of one sunken vessel, Capt. Michael F. Barry, 52, of Brooklyn, asserted he "would like to see those men get medals for their fine work."

Ex-Correspondent Says It Will Take 4 Years to Beat Japs.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— America's 16-year-old boys will be in uniform and fighting overseas before Japan can be beaten. This is the prediction of Hallett Abend, who served as far eastern correspondent of the New York Times for 15 years.

Abend set four years as the minimum length of our military campaign against Japan, which he described as "the largest continuous land and water empire in the history of the world," dominating 405,000,000 people to the full limit of their labor, financial and material resources.

WATERTOWN, Conn.—(INS)—Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Monday for Horace Dutton Taft, 81, founder of the Taft School for Boys, who died at his home last night. He had been in ill health since Christmas and died of an internal hemorrhage.

A member of one of America's illustrious families, Taft was headmaster of the school he founded for 46 years. He was a brother of the late William Howard Taft, president of the United States.

Single Command In North Africa Agreed on, Report

Eighth army's brilliant, 1,400-mile march to Tripoli.

The choice of Montgomery was said to be likely because his Eighth army is considered by military men to be the finest striking force in the world. In addition, he has had three years of experience fighting Germans and Italians.

It was taken for granted here that North Africa would be a stepping stone for the invasion of Europe and that one of the biggest air assaults of history would be launched against southern Europe as a softening up operation for the land action.

The personal opinion of this correspondent is that British Air Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder will be entrusted with the task of directing the bombing.

The fact that Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. chief of staff, and Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, British commander for the Middle East, received up-to-the-minute reports on the Tunisian military situation was taken as an indication here that extensive operations might not be far away.

The question was raised today concerning who would command the French forces after Brig.-Gen. Jacques Leclerc's troops join Gen. Henri Honore Giraud's forces. Leclerc's army is composed of Fighting French.

While Leclerc commands the Fighting French army that drove up from the Chad region, Giraud is commander-in-chief of all French forces in French Africa. When Leclerc reaches Tunisia, the issue of who is in supreme command will come to a head.

Sets More Precedents On Homeward Trip

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Piling precedent on precedent, President Roosevelt is taking advantage of his historic trip to North Africa by stopping off en route home and conferring with the heads of Allied nations in both hemispheres.

The latest of these meetings came yesterday, when Mr. Roosevelt saw President Getulio Vargas of Brazil at Natal, main South American terminus of the airplane service to Africa.

While details were not immediately available, it was presumed the two chief executives had an opportunity to discuss Brazil's strategic importance in hemispheric defense.

Meanwhile the White House disclosed Mr. Roosevelt had paused on his journey homeward from the momentous war councils in North Africa to greet the president of tropical Liberia, on the western bulge of Africa.

There he reviewed American Negro troops and inspected a plantation turning out war-vital rubber.

News of his Liberian visit was contained in a dispatch from Monrovia, released through the White House, which told for the first time of Mr. Roosevelt's travel, after the president, Winston Churchill, and the American and British high commands charted their 1943 war plans in a ten-day conference at Casablanca, Morocco.

The conference ended Sunday, and chief executive and prime minister drove southward 150 miles to Marrakech, an ancient Berber and Arab town at the foot of the Atlas mountains of French Morocco. There they spent the night and there they said their farewells the following day.

With one intervening stop, which was not identified, Mr. Roosevelt and his party flew to Liberia in two four-motored army transport planes.

They landed at Roberts field, about 50 miles from Monrovia and were greeted by Brig. Gen. S. W. Fitzgerald, commanding the Middle East wing of the air transport command, and Brig. Gen. James F. C. Hyde, commanding general of the central African service of supply to the American armies.

Allowed a bit of time to freshen up, the president was escorted to the officers' mess hall where President Edwin Barclay of Liberia, Clarence L. Simpson, Liberian secretary of state, and Frederick P. Hibbard, American charge d'affaires, were waiting to greet him.

After lunch, the two chief executives got into a bouncing jeep and rode to a parade ground.

George Seybold, general manager of the Firestone Rubber company's 69,000-acre plantation, took charge of the party after a troop review.

These three noted women will take part in the A. A. U. W. conference here today and tomorrow. state officers at a high tea at the Woman's Club.

Miss Justina Eich, dean of women at Capital university in Columbus and president of the Ohio division, was to head the 16 members of the state board arriving today. Among the other officers expected to attend the conference are: Mrs. Timothy Hewlett of Toledo, vice president; Mrs. George Florence of Columbus, secretary, and Mrs. Elliott Chapman of Cincinnati, treasurer. Dr. White will arrive Saturday.

Taking the place of the annual convention, cancelled this year due to wartime restrictions, the conference will be devoted for the most part to a series of workshop meetings where the subjects fostered by the association will be discussed in their relationship to the war effort.

Two Mansfield members will be among the 10 study group leaders. Mrs. R. A. Rowlands, local chairman for the conference, will conduct the discussion on social studies and defense embracing such subjects as consumer interests, social welfare, labor standards and housing. Mrs. Dan Haber will substitute for Mrs. Florence Hennis of Marietta college in leading the art workshop.

Dean Irma Voight of Ohio university, Athens, will summarize the results of the various discussions as the final feature of the afternoon session. Dean Helen Battrick of Akron university will be chairman for the day.

Greetings from Mansfield branch will be extended at the luncheon slated for 12 noon at the hotel by Mrs. Thomas Hoffman, vice president, in behalf of Mrs. Charles Kuntz, president, unable to attend. The day's program will begin at 9:30 a. m. and resolve into study groups at 10 a. m.

Lieut. Louise Kennedy of the Fifth Service Command, Fort Hayes, Columbus, will present the women's side of the army at the luncheon. She is in Mansfield in connection with the WAAC recruiting office. Rev. Martin W. Wappner, chaplain at the Ohio Reformatory, will pronounce the invocation. Music will be furnished by the treble choir directed by Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine.

At the evening banquet, music will be furnished by the Mansfield String trio composed of Mrs. E. D. Gibson, Mrs. Elsie Ireland and Ernest Schafer. Rev. Herman Gilbert of St. Paul's Lutheran church, will give the invocation.

A corps of branch members are serving on the various conference committees and practically the entire membership is expected to attend the workshop meetings.

Ex-Mansfielder Drives FDR On Surprise Liberian Visit

Prior to that time he had attended Mansfield schools, including about three years spent in Mansfield senior high, and worked at temporary jobs with the old Mansfield Shield and later News.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seybold, both deceased, he was born and reared in the family home at 394 South Main street.

According to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington, President Roosevelt and his party were not only escorted by Seybold through the plantation but they were also driven through nearby African villages in the republic of Monrovia, which was founded by negro freemen from this country in 1880.

Bates Returns Next Week as Mansfield's Chief of Police

today declined to comment on Bates' status, but finally conceded that the Bates resignation was on file and that Bates likely would separate from federal service soon. Bates, reached later, said he would return next week "probably the latter part of the week."

Immediately after Bates changed his leave request a reportedly Locke-inspired petition was circulated among members of the police department, asking Bates' return to the force, and reportedly sent to the FBI office in Cleveland. Bates said he knew nothing of such a petition.

According to best information obtainable, the petition which Locke sent to FBI officials contained 17 signatures, or about 50 per cent of the police personnel.

"Why should anyone declare Bates is the only man capable of being chief?" several policemen who did not sign it asked. They inferred that the petition Bates return was to admit that no one else on the force was capable of assuming the chief's duties.

"We're back of the eight ball whether we sign it or not," was another's comment.

The petition was not circulated openly before all members of the second shift (Capt. Jess Schwab in charge) but several of these members signed it when approached elsewhere.

Capt. John Miller, senior captain and assistant chief, declared today that Locke has not communicated with him even to a "hello" since he took over direction of the police department Jan. 19. Miller has said that he would not care to serve indefinitely as chief.

NEW MATINEE

Copper Scrap To Be 'Price' of Theater Admission.

Another opportunity to "get in the scrap" will be offered by the copper scrap matinee at the Ohio theater Saturday at 10 a. m. when all movie houses in the city will co-operate in a special event aimed to replenish the government's stockpile of copper.

The only price of admission is an old copper ash tray, fire screen, tea kettle, pair of bookends, door knockers or any similar discarded copper objects. Plaques, medals, ventilators, and engraving cuts will also be accepted.

Grattan Johnston, city manager of Warner Brothers' theaters, in charge of the affair, called attention to the fact that no pennies will be honored as a contribution. All admission contributions must be in the form of copper scrap, he said.

A complete screen bill headed by Jane Withers' picture, "A Very Young Lady," will be shown. Two color cartoons and a patriotic technicolor short, "Give Me Liberty," are included in the program.

TAX BILLS DUE

Property Owners Charged With $843,732 In Statements.

Statements for $843,732 due in Richland county real estate tax for the first half of 1942 were to be mailed from the office of County Treasurer Charles Payne this week preparatory to start of collections Monday. March 10 is the final date for payment without penalty.

Of this amount, $711,822 was the current charge with the remaining $131,910 due in delinquent taxes carried forward. The total charge was an increase of approximately $64,000 over last year, due principally, Payne explained, to increased valuation, new properties on the duplicate for the first time and the fact that delinquencies had been reduced last year by $21,687. The tax bill for the entire year totals $1,555,555.49.

In view of the gasoline and tire shortage, Payne said he expected a greater share of payments than ever before to be sent in by mail.

both Italy and Axis positions in North Africa were acknowledged in the communique broadcast from Rome. Several waves of Allied planes caused heavy damage at the port of Sfax, high command said.

The high command mentioned 26 dead and 34 injured as victims of the forays.

CAIRO—(AP)—British headquarters indicated today vanguards of the Eighth army, driving westward in pursuit of Field Marshal Rommel, had reached the vicinity of Zuara, 65 miles west of Tripoli.

A communique told of continued advances and spoke of "artillery exchanges in the coastal sector near Zuara."

Allied airmen were reported to have made successful attacks on targets in southern Italy and Sicily yesterday in a follow-up to assaults on the same area the previous night.

Giraud Says Accord Military, Economic

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—(AP)—Gen. Henri Honore Giraud declared today that there were no prospects of any single united French movement at the present time and that the only agreement between himself and General Chares De Gaulle would be one "of liaison on military, economic and financial matters."

Giraud, high commissioner for French North and West Africa, told a press conference he had not taken up "the question of politics" with the leader of the Fighting French when the two were brought together during the Roosevelt-Churchill conference at Casablanca.

"There is no question of a single United French movement throughout the world at the present time," he said.

"We are establishing a permanent liaison on critical economic and military questions."

Giraud told the conference he was willing to give the Jews in North Africa back their property and allow Jewish children in the schools, but added that "these moves must be made gradually."

Four Waves of U. S. Bombers Hit Sfax

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA — (AP) — The 12th U. S. Air Force executed its heaviest attack of the war yesterday in a four-wave raid upon Sfax which left many fires raging in that Axis supply port, it was announced today.

B-17 Flying Fortresses led the attack. Medium bombers, B-25 Mitchells and B-26 Marauders, followed the four-engined planes in loosing their destructive cargoes. P-38 Lightning fighters formed the escort. Six Axis planes which sought to intercept were shot down.

"The number of planes used was the largest the 12th Air Force had ever sent against a single target," the air force spokesman said.

(The Italian high command communique said that heavy damage was suffered at Sfax and reported that "the number of casualties is not yet ascertained.")

The communique said there was no change in the ground situation.

Fighters attacked Axis troops in the Ousseltia valley and pounced upon armored vehicles farther north. Roads in the Point du Fahs area were bombed Wednesday night. Three enemy bombers were reported shot out of a small formation which dropped explosives in the Algiers area last night. Two Allied aircraft were missing from the various operations.

DOUBT HITLER TO MAKE SPEECH

London Observers Say Only Goebbels and Goering Are Scheduled to Talk.

on the retreat at that moment in Russia "now that the peak of winter rigors has passed they (the Russians) shall soon see what it means to taste the German steel."

The place for Goebbels' speech tomorrow was not named.

Goering, Berlin said, will address the German armed forces at 11 a. m. (6 a. m. EWT).

Reports came from continental Europe that Hitler might declare martial law throughout Germany, despite Berlin radio denials, that despite the decision at Casablanca that unconditional surrender of the Axis powers was the prerequisite to peace he might try in some way to put out peace feelers.

There was general agreement that whatever Hitler did he would have no reason to celebrate the day and that for Germans generally it would not be a happy celebration.

The political correspondent of the Daily Mail asserted today that he had reliable information originating inside Germany and in neutral capitals that new German peace feelers were on the way, though possibly within the next few weeks instead of at once.

A German broadcast said early today:

"Referring to the Casablanca expression 'unconditional surrender' it ought to be clear by this time that Germany is not even faintly interested in conditions of peace, that the ardent resolve of the German people is to achieve unconditional victory."

SNOW REMOVAL THIS WINTER TO BE COSTLY JOB

Crawford Highway Engineer Estimates Work to Set Record Cost.

BUCYRUS — Cost of removing snow and ice from state roads in Crawford county during the 1942-1943 winter months will probably reach a record figure, H. G. McMichael, superintendent of state highways in Crawford county, predicted today.

In Bucyrus more than double the amount of cinders and salt used on streets in the 1941-42 winter has already been distributed on the streets, Service Director Fred Judd announced.

More than 600 tons of road materials will be needed in the spring to repair frost damage which is expected to be exceptionally severe, Supt. McMichael said. No estimate of repairs to be made were available in the city street department.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 29, 1943.

We hold these truths to be self-evident; that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.—Thomas Jefferson.

Hitler To Make 'Annual Report'

HITLER is due for another speech tomorrow, his annual "report to the nation" on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of his accession to supreme power in Germany.

This speech, which even Hitler must realize may be the last of his anniversary outbursts, will attract worldwide interest—not so much on account of surface bombast as for study of his methods of continuing to conceal from the German people the certainty of defeat and eventual requirement for "unconditional surrender" instead of a negotiated peace.

A year ago, on the ninth anniversary of the Nazi regime, Hitler made many threats and promises, including assurance of overwhelming German victories during 1942 and a boast that Russian forces would be quickly crushed.

None of his glowing promises has materialized and it cannot be doubted that the German people are beginning to realize the state of Axis affairs in Russia and in North Africa, in addition to experiencing the growing might of Allied air power.

With all the speculation that has been going on about what Hitler may say tomorrow it now seems assured that he will not take this occasion to launch a new peace offensive—as many think he had planned. The clear pronouncement of Allied determination to fight through to "unconditional surrender" by the Axis, dashes any hope he may have had that peace might be negotiated on a basis of Germany being permitted to hold territorial acquisitions in Europe.

What Hitler says tomorrow may not be as important as the way he says it—and the things he leaves unsaid.

Graduates, Take Long Look Ahead

EIGHTY-FIVE Mansfield young people will be graduated from Senior high school this evening—last of the city's mid-year commencements, unless school authorities decide to reinstate the practice sometime in the future.

The plan of having June and January graduation was started about twenty years ago, with a view to reducing the size of classes, but preference was so strong for June graduation that it was decided, twelve years ago, to return to the once-a-year commencement, and it is not until now that the end of the experiment was reached, with January classes gradually dwindling in numbers.

Present-day high school graduates, here and elsewhere, are justified in a feeling of concern as to their immediate future, because of war conditions and intended induction of many 18-year-old youths into military service.

Decisions as to further education and choice of vocations must now, more than ordinarily, be based on circumstances and opportunities.

A long look ahead, rather than quick conclusion that the present outlook is "dark," would seem advisable for today's ambitious young people, who can feel assured that this war will end in victory for the United Nations, within the next few years, and it will be a part of their privilege and responsibility to have a large share in shaping post-war conditions in their communities, state and nation.

Opportunities for ambitious, energetic, capable and dependable young men and women will be greater after the war than ever before. Amazing new fields will open in industry, business and the professions, for those who make ready to meet the greater requirements of the future, and it is from among those who have taken advantage of educational opportunities that leadership must come.

Meet today's problems and perform today's tasks promptly and earnestly—but don't become confused by the transient uncertainties of war . . . look to the future beyond the war and make ready to do your share of the things that must be done.

Mr. Jeffers 'Speaks His Mind'

MAIN TROUBLE with Rubber Director William Jeffers seems to be that he wants to get things done expeditiously, and that he is irked by what he regards as time-killing red tape.

And then again, Jeffers has a habit of saying what he thinks, instead of being restrained by politics or diplomacy.

His sharp criticism of army and navy "expediters" in war plants, made in answering a question at a Baltimore meeting a few days ago, drew a rebuke from Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, who told Mr. Jeffers that all intended remarks should pass through that office for an OK.

Mr. Jeffers contends that high priority ratings are needed to get synthetic rubber into quantity production, that so-called "expediters" have delayed instead of speeding production, and insists on his right to "speak his mind" on the subject.

So it would appear that Mr. Jeffers is either "on his way out" or headed toward sufficient authority to get something done.

Co-operate With Your Doctor

THE individual citizen can help relieve the wartime medical problem. Here are suggestions: Choose your physician carefully and stick to him. Make appointments for visits as early as possible.

Whenever able to do so, visit the physician's office instead of asking him to call at your home.

Write down all important facts you want to tell him. Tell him all symptoms which have any bearing on your physical welfare. Have confidence in him. Write down his instructions and make sure you understand them. Public co-operation can go far toward eliminating the "doctor shortage."

Wonder About German Air Power

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Never in history has any nation been able to screen its military secrets from its enemies so successfully as either Germany or Russia in this war. Compared to those two Japan is not in the running.

At the moment the one thing the intelligence services of all the United Nations would like to know more than anything else is the truth about the German air power. Speculation there is plenty, but no one outside Germany, and probably very few people even inside Germany, know the truth.

We do know a few things about the present activities of the Nazi air force. We know, for instance, that the Germans have been woefully short of air power on the Russian front, and this has been a contributing factor to the Russian successes since winter came.

We know also that, despite the ease with which the Axis forces in Africa can be reinforced by air, they have not had air superiority anywhere from Egypt to Gibraltar since the British under Montgomery began pushing them back from Egypt.

THERE were a few bad days from our standpoint in North Africa, but this was due not to lack of planes and flyers so much as to lack of nearby air fields from which fighters could take off, which in turn was due to the difficulty of constructing them during the rainy season.

Still another thing we know is that Germany has withdrawn a considerable fraction of her planes based in northern Norway and Finland, the objective of which was to harass shipments of supplies to Russia by way of Murmansk and Archangel.

And finally we know that the German air force defending northern France and the low countries has been very weak, comparatively, for some months while resumption of air attacks on Britain was made by small flights of Nazi bombers, contrasted to the hordes that formerly flew over.

In short, German air power has, for the last few months, been much weaker in every quarter than the United Nations forces had any right to hope. In every sector the Russians, British and Americans have suspected that Germany was using the bulk of her air power on some other front, while the truth has been that she has weakened in air power on every front.

THE SEEMINGLY obvious deduction, that Germany is short of airplanes, fuel or pilots, strangely enough, is not accepted by the military experts of Britain, the U. S. or Russia. This is strange, in view of the fact that lack of more air power on the Russian front, on the Arctic supply route to Russia, in North Africa, and for defense of the battered war plants and railroads of the Ruhr and northern France, is costing Germany a terrific price.

A few hundred more German planes in North Africa, British officers told Leland Stowe, would have changed the whole picture of the campaign that his driven Rommel back from Egypt to Tunisia. It takes no expert to figure what a thousand additional Nazi fighting planes and bombers could have accomplished along the front from Leningrad to the Caucasus.

Yet the military experts are almost unanimous in their belief that it is no lack in planes, fuel or pilots which has caused this weakness. It is rather a tribute to the Nazi invincibility myth that the experts think Germany is saving her air strength for some surprise blow. But here is a layman who just can't make himself believe that!

Bury Yesterday!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THEY'LL be celebrating Chinese New Year in San Francisco soon. Ever see them at it? Even in these war days, it's a great show. Laughing crowds surging through the narrow, cobbled streets. Peach blossoms and almonds sprouting from every gilded balcony—lilies blooming behind each blurred window pane. And, all through the day and night, the twanging sing-song of the Chinese bands.

Maybe they'll even bring out the Dragon this year—that fabulous, fabricated fifty-foot beast, covered with glittering scales, riding on the shoulders of a score of men. The great Dragon that means so much more than our conventional "Happy New Year."

For the Chinese do more than merely welcome the new year on their great day. They burn the old year—which is vastly different and more difficult thing.

By New Year's day, each honorable Chinaman must have paid his debts, settled his old accounts, put away Yesterday for keeps. There is no bickering in the little shops with the worn floors, the tubs of pickled duck and piles of seeded cakes. There is no tourist business done in the big bazaars. This is a time for Ending as well as Beginning and you must bring a free heart to the job.

Putting away the old year — what a difference it would make in our American lives if we could learn that lesson from the wise Chinese. For us, New Year is a day on the calendar. But for them it is a day in the spirit—a true, new beginning.

Our lips patter the usual slogan on Jan. 1. But it rarely goes deeper than our lips. We aren't stepping across the threshold of a new life unencumbered. We're dragging a hundred burdens with us, all the old griefs and fears, feuds and discouragements which we've accumulated since childhood.

Year by year, that burden has grown greater. Some of it is actually ludicrous now. There's the grudge we've had against Mabel Allen ever since she won the Fourth of July Beauty Prize. And the contempt we've felt for Billy Reed since we caught him cheating at marbles. Little things? Yet not so little after all. Big enough to twist and warp our character out of shape.

Our unburied yesterdays — the sorrow we won't put away — the anger or remorse we won't forget—the whole, ugly, festering mass of mistakes and misunderstandings — they have wrecked more lives than a dozen wars. And still we go lugging them along, sacrificing new chances for moth-eaten memories.

What an interesting adventure? Go out some night into a crowded street and watch the living who are carrying their unburied dead. There's the woman who was a bewitching Gibson Girl back in the 90's . . . and who hasn't been able to forget it since.

She might be warm and friendly now, part of this vital, new world picture. But she's addled, dull and remote instead. For she can't forget the pink rose she tucked behind her ear . . . the frou-frou of her ruffled taffeta skirt . . . the waiting line of beaux.

And there's the man who fought with his brother in 1909—and has poured every particle of his energy into that feud ever since. He was a bright fellow, too, with a gay charm about him. Now he looks like a withered persimmon. Wonder what he might have done with life if he hadn't wasted it on hate?

Wonder what we all might do with our lives if we'd get a good spade and start digging . . . then walk away free to make a really new start?

Timely Editorial

Vandenberg Explains.

We are indebted to Senator Vandenberg for a concise description of the consequences of forgiving taxes on 1942 income—in the event congress overcomes the treasury's objections and passes a bill based on the Ruml pay-as-you-go plan.

The senator from Michigan, denouncing the treasury for "unwittingly" encouraging the people to believe that March 15 will be a holiday rather than a pay day, by talking about how much money it would lose under the Ruml plan, added:

"Of course, the truth is that if a taxpayer's 1943 income is approximately the same as in 1942, he pays the same tax March 15 either way, and the treasury gets the money either way.

"What the taxpayer gains is that his books are balanced at the end of the year. And what the treasury loses is only a bookkeeping loss spread over the entire lifetime of the taxpayer, which means that the impact on the treasury like the impact of mortality on a life insurance company is spread over generations."—Akron Beacon Journal.

Interpreting the War News

Tojo Presents Cheerful Picture Of Japanese Gains In Territory

—By GLENN BABB

GENERAL TOJO has made his annual report to his people on the state of the nation. His problem, as he addressed parliament, was to present a hopeful picture of the war in which Japan has not won a major victory since the conquest of Burma was completed nearly nine months ago.

To keep morale high he shifted emphasis from the purely military aspects to a contrast between Japan as the possessor of a vast new wealth and the United States and Britain as the new "have not" nations.

"Today after one year of our war of justice," he told the diet, "the southern areas, the world's foremost treasure house, has been completely secured by us. . . . In contrast to our position the United States and Britain, which boasted of their wealth and resources before the war, now are exposing a great shortage in vital war resources."

There is far too much truth in the Japanese premier's picture to suit Americans, who, because of Japan's conquests in those southern regions, have had to forego some of the more luxurious features of a standard of living far above the dreams of the average subject of the mikado.

But that is just one side of the picture. Perhaps the Japanese people can get some spiritual comfort out of their premier's description of their new wealth; it is certain that they are a long way from getting any physical comfort out of it.

The American who shivers in the 60 degrees of his oil-heated home and expends shoe leather where he used to wear out rubber need not envy the lot of Tojo's compatriots, whose shoddy footwear is no protection against slushy, muddy streets and to whom 60 degree heat would be undreamed of winter comfort.

Not for them is the oil of the East Indies or the rubber of Malaya. The army gets it all—all that is, that Japan has the means of gathering and the shipping to haul.

THE key remark of the premier's speech was this: "Of course it will require great efforts on our part to make these resources demonstrate their real wealth and power." That doubtless sums up the task on which Tojo's government is concentrating its greatest efforts. Japan has won great wealth, taken it out of the resources of the United Nations and added it to her own.

But the question is whether she has the capacity to use it with anything like the effectiveness with which it was used by its former owners.

Tojo promised his people victory in general terms, but aside from the general assurance that Japan's position for offense as well as defense had been established by seizure of the necessary bases, there was no specific promise of new conquests.

Health And Diet

Common Cold Can Be Relieved.

—By DR. CLENDENING

WHAT shall I do for my cold, doctor?"

Well, the doctor probably doesn't know any more about it than you do. In fact, when you ask the doctor, he may be suffering just as much from a cold as you are.

In the first place, you can discard the idea that you are going to cure a cold and be perfectly comfortable by any method known to man in five hours, a day, or in fact, five days.

Inflamed Mucous Membrane.

No matter what causes a cold—what particular kind of a germ—the effect is an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose, the throat and later on of the bronchial tubes.

The inflammation of the mucous membrane of the throat gives the feeling of rawness of the throat and later on when the bronchial tubes are affected, there is a feeling of tightness and rawness in the chest. But this is not all: along with this go the symptoms of a generalized infection—flashes of hot and cold, achey feelings in the muscles, joint pains, loss of appetite, mental depression, the general conclusion that the world is all against you.

Now it is possible to obtain some relief from these symptoms although the treatment does not necessarily shorten the course of the disease. Let us look at some medicinal remedies suggested.

First aspirin, which is probably the favorite and the first-suggested remedy nowadays.

It definitely relieves pain, especially of headache and of the joints and of the muscles, by a central action on the nervous system, so it does not make any difference what causes the pain or discomfort, it will be relieved just the same by aspirin. Now all of these things plainly indicate that aspirin deserves its reputation in the treatment of a cold. Checking the symptoms as given above and the effects of aspirin, it will be seen that it relieves the symptoms but it certainly does not cure the cold.

In Dr. Wesley W. Spink's book published in 1942 on the sulfa drugs, such as sulfonamide, he has made a list of the diseases for which the drugs are no good. At the head of the list is the common cold. I hope this will be a terrible lesson.

These drugs are to the fore in everyone's imagination now, so the pressure on the doctor to give one for a cold is great. But remember, they all have disagreeable side effects. They make you feel like the dickens for days. That is all right if you have a serious disease like pneumonia, but you don't want to submit yourself to this just for a cold.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Before the 78th congress was much over a week old, more than 1,000 bills and resolutions had been introduced.

To a lot of the old-timers on the Hill, that's not even worth mentioning. Practically all Congresses are like that.

A great chunk of these bills will never reach the house or senate floors. They will die in committees. Some will expire because their authors are unable to make their pleas heard above the tumult and shouting of more important legislation; some because their authors don't care much anyway, they having introduced them only because of pressure from important constituents.

Another sizable percentage are so-called "private bills"—principally measures to settle individual claims against the government for damages to property or persons.

Still that leaves more bills than any newspaper could itemize and explain. In Tuskegee, Ala., they probably know there are three bills pending to establish memorials to the late Negro scientist and educator, Dr. George Washington Carver, but I doubt if much of the rest of the United States ever heard about them.

PROBABLY no one has taken the trouble to report that Sen. Pat McCarran has revived that ancient battle between the Commonwealth of Virginia and the national capital by introducing a bill to establish (once and for all) the boundaries between Virginia and the District of Columbia. The same senator has another measure that might stir up a storm—a bill to establish a federal Department of Aviation.

Sen. Lister Hill has a "universal service and total mobilization" bill and Sen. Hattie Caraway has one to establish preparatory schools for West Point and Annapolis.

There already are at least two to provide for rehabilitation of wounded veterans of this war (one also includes rehabilitation of injured war workers) and another would pay a $60 "bonus" to men honorably discharged from military service.

* * *

IN BOTH chambers, bill have dropped into the hopper which would authorize the president to make the late Col. William (Billy) Mitchell a posthumous major general.

Both house and senate have a resolution pending which would extend the right to vote to all persons 18 years of age or older.

There are bills to establish training schools for civilian glider pilots; to call an international convention for drawing up "an international constitution;" to count out all aliens in enumerating congressional districts; to grant free postage to WAACS, Waves and Spars.

Skip all the controversial measures and the 78th congress could still have a merry time and leave its footprints on the legislative records.

Dave Boone Says:

IT SURE was pretty dull on the radio last night. Nothing but music and quizzes and jokes and commercials. Not a super-broadcast by the government all evening.

* * *

And no programs interrupted to broadcast an official Washington advertisement of a big news release to come today either. My hunch is that the big news of the other night from Africa was an anti-climax to the "great unseen audience."

* * *

I see where the women folks were disappointed. When they were told the government was going to give 'em something of terrific importance they thought it must be something about making it easier to get sugar, etc.

* * *

I know a fellow who made a bet that the big news was to be a formal announcement that Frank Hague had been named ambassador to Russia.

* * *

Dozens of hair oil and tooth paste firms wrote the government offering to sponsor its future broadcasts if allowed to slip in a few commercial jingles.

Words of the Wise

Opportunity is ever worth expecting; let your hook be ever hanging ready. The fish will be in the pool where you least imagine it to be.—Ovid.

As Others See It

Observation.

Some advocates of the pay-as-you-go plan are said to be waiting for a formula. But if put to work the plan would be a first rate formula itself.—Kansas City Star.

Danger Foreseen.

Secretary Ickes has advised persons living in the country to start a fish pond to get around the meat shortage. The drawback to this is that just about the time the fish were big enough to eat, some cheerful experimenter would come along and order them plowed under.—Ohio State Journal.

A Farmer's Diary

Guard the Roots

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT WAS on a steep barren hill. Some years ago a sudden downpour washed a gully no more than 18 inches deep. Since then, I had not seen the place until after the latest thaw. The field had been long abandoned and now that ditch had reached a depth of 20 feet.

I followed up along the narrow stony trough. Raw clay tumbled constantly down along the steep moist sides. Farther on, the right bank of the earthy wound was edged with a kind of bluegrass and the side became a perpendicular wall of clay.

I brushed away a clump of grass, and found, even 20 feet below the surface, white fleshy rootlets. They were nestled thickly and had used up the excess moisture so well that the earth did not become saturated and slide. I dug deeper and severed a larger root and detected, in the sap, the heavy, somewhat disagreeable odor of locust. I saw, on the tiny crotches, small nitrogen-fixing nodules.

When I walked through the depression, I looked for the locust tree. One large one stood more than 250 feet away—near a dense hedge of osage orange. That was the farthest I had ever known lateral roots of locust to travel.

And then I thought—standing in the trough of that mammoth open ditch—how generous one might be to this barren field and to the neighborhood below it, if he scattered a few handfuls of locust beans on either side. Coming back after 10 years more, the ruinous gully might have almost disappeared, and rich dark green bluegrass might cover well the hollow.

Roots—the saving power of all other living things. Roots—without which there would be no leaves—no human or animal life—and even a kindly sun would shine upon a world of barren wilderness. Roots—deep in the silent soil, holding together the rich good earth—making from the wastes of the barnyard, the decay of living matter such miracles as food and fiber and fuel and even flowers.

Mansfield News-Journal
AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER
MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 29, 1943.

We hold these truths to be self-evident; that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.—Thomas Jefferson.

Hitler To Make 'Annual Report'

HITLER is due for another speech tomorrow, his annual "report to the nation" on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of his accession to supreme power in Germany.

This speech, which even Hitler must realize may be the last of his anniversary outbursts, will attract worldwide interest—not so much on account of surface bombast as for study of his methods of continuing to conceal from the German people the certainty of defeat and eventual requirement for "unconditional surrender" instead of a negotiated peace.

A year ago, on the ninth anniversary of the Nazi regime, Hitler made many threats and promises, including assurance of overwhelming German victories during 1942 and a boast that Russian forces would be quickly crushed.

None of his glowing promises has materialized and it cannot be doubted that the German people are beginning to realize the state of Axis affairs in Russia and in North Africa, in addition to experiencing the growing might of Allied air power.

With all the speculation that has been going on about what Hitler may say tomorrow it now seems assured that he will not take this occasion to launch a new peace offensive—as many think he had planned. The clear pronouncement of Allied determination to fight through to "unconditional surrender" by the Axis, dashes any hope he may have had that peace might be negotiated on a basis of Germany being permitted to hold territorial acquisitions in Europe.

What Hitler says tomorrow may not be as important as the way he says it—and the things he leaves unsaid.

Graduates, Take Long Look Ahead

EIGHTY-FIVE Mansfield young people will be graduated from Senior high school this evening—last of the city's mid-year commencements, unless school authorities decide to reinstate the practice sometime in the future.

The plan of having June and January graduation was started about twenty years ago, with a view to reducing the size of classes, but preference was so strong for June graduation that it was decided, twelve years ago, to return to the once-a-year commencement, and it is not until now that the end of the experiment was reached, with January classes gradually dwindling in numbers.

Present-day high school graduates, here and elsewhere, are justified in a feeling of concern as to their immediate future, because of war conditions and intended induction of many 18-year-old youths into military service.

Decisions as to further education and choice of vocations must now, more than ordinarily, be based on circumstances and opportunities.

A long look ahead, rather than quick conclusion that the present outlook is "dark," would seem advisable for today's ambitious young people, who can feel assured that this war will end in victory for the United Nations, within the next few years, and it will be a part of their privilege and responsibility to have a large share in shaping post-war conditions in their communities, state and nation.

Opportunities for ambitious, energetic, capable and dependable young men and women will be greater after the war than ever before. Amazing new fields will open in industry, business and the professions, for those who make ready to meet the greater requirements of the future, and it is from among those who have taken advantage of educational opportunities that leadership must come.

Meet today's problems and perform today's tasks promptly and earnestly—but don't become confused by the transient uncertainties of war . . . look to the future beyond the war and make ready to do your share of the things that must be done.

Mr. Jeffers 'Speaks His Mind'

MAIN TROUBLE with Rubber Director William Jeffers seems to be that he wants to get things done expeditiously, and that he is irked by what he regards as time-killing red tape.

And then again, Jeffers has a habit of saying what he thinks, instead of being restrained by politics or diplomacy.

His sharp criticism of army and navy "expediters" in war plants, made in answering a question at a Baltimore meeting a few days ago, drew a rebuke from Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, who told Mr. Jeffers that all intended remarks should pass through that office for an OK.

Mr. Jeffers contends that high priority ratings are needed to get synthetic rubber into quantity production, that so-called "expediters" have delayed instead of speeding production, and insists on his right to "speak his mind" on the subject.

So it would appear that Mr. Jeffers is either "on his way out" or headed toward sufficient authority to get something done.

Co-operate With Your Doctor

THE individual citizen can help relieve the wartime medical problem. Here are suggestions: Choose your physician carefully and stick to him. Make appointments for visits as early as possible.

Whenever able to do so, visit the physician's office instead of asking him to call at your home.

Write down all important facts you want to tell him. Tell him all symptoms which have any bearing on your physical welfare. Have confidence in him. Write down his instructions and make sure you understand them. Public co-operation can go far toward eliminating the "doctor shortage."

Wonder About German Air Power

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Never in history has any nation been able to screen its military secrets from its enemies so successfully as either Germany or Russia in this war. Compared to those two Japan is not in the running.

At the moment the one thing the intelligence services of all the United Nations would like to know more than anything else is the truth about the German air power. Speculation there is plenty, but no one outside Germany, and probably very few people even inside Germany, know the truth.

We do know a few things about the present activities of the Nazi air force. We know, for instance, that the Germans have been woefully short of air power on the Russian front, and this has been a contributing factor to the Russian successes since winter came.

We know also that, despite the ease with which the Axis forces in Africa can be reinforced by air, they have not had air superiority anywhere from Egypt to Gibraltar since the British under Montgomery began pushing them back from Egypt.

THERE were a few bad days from our standpoint in North Africa, but this was due not to lack of planes and flyers so much as to lack of nearby air fields from which fighters could take off, which in turn was due to the difficulty of constructing them during the rainy season.

Still another thing we know is that Germany has withdrawn a considerable fraction of her planes based in northern Norway and Finland, the objective of which was to harass shipments of supplies to Russia by way of Murmansk and Archangel.

And finally we know that the German air force defending northern France and the low countries has been very weak, comparatively, for some months while resumption of air attacks on Britain was made by small flights of Nazi bombers, contrasted to the hordes that formerly flew over.

In short, German air power has, for the last few months, been much weaker in every quarter than the United Nations forces had any right to hope. In every sector the Russians, British and Americans have suspected that Germany was using the bulk of her air power on some other front, while the truth has been that she has weakened in air power on every front.

THE SEEMINGLY obvious deduction, that Germany is short of airplanes, fuel or pilots, strangely enough, is not accepted by the military experts of Britain, the U. S. or Russia. This is strange, in view of the fact that lack of more air power on the Russian front, on the Arctic supply route to Russia, in North Africa, and for defense of the battered war plants and railroads of the Ruhr and northern France, is costing Germany a terrific price.

A few hundred more German planes in North Africa, British officers told Leland Stowe, would have changed the whole picture of the campaign that his driven Rommel back from Egypt to Tunisia. It takes no expert to figure what a thousand additional Nazi fighting planes and bombers could have accomplished along the front from Leningrad to the Caucasus.

Yet the military experts are almost unanimous in their belief that it is no lack in planes, fuel or pilots which has caused this weakness. It is rather a tribute to the Nazi invincibility myth that the experts think Germany is saving her air strength for some surprise blow. But here is a layman who just can't make himself believe that!

Listen World!

Bury Yesterday!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THEY'LL be celebrating Chinese New Year in San Francisco soon. Ever see them at it? Even in these war days, it's a great show. Laughing crowds surging through the narrow, cobbled streets. Peach blossoms and almonds sprouting from every gilded balcony—lilies blooming behind each blurred window pane. And, all through the day and night, the twanging sing-song of the Chinese bands.

Maybe they'll even bring out the Dragon this year—that fabulous, fabricated fifty-foot beast, covered with glittering scales, riding on the shoulders of a score of men. The great Dragon that means so much more than our conventional "Happy New Year."

For the Chinese do more than merely welcome the new year on their great day. They bury the old year—which is vastly different and more difficult thing.

By New Year's day, each honorable Chinaman must have paid his debts, settled his old accounts, put away Yesterday for keeps. There is no bickering in the little shops with the worn floors, the tubs of pickled duck and piles of seeded cakes. There is no tourist business done in the big bazaars. This is a time for Ending as well as Beginning and you must bring a free heart to the job.

Putting away the old year — what a difference it would make in our American lives if we could learn that lesson from the wise Chinese. For us, New Year is a day on the calendar. But for them it is a day in the spirit—a true, new beginning.

Our lips patter the usual slogan on Jan. 1. But it rarely goes deeper than our lips. We aren't stepping across the threshold of a new life unencumbered. We're dragging a hundred burdens with us, all the old griefs and fears, feuds and discouragements which we've accumulated since childhood.

Year by year, that burden has grown greater. Some of it is actually ludicrous now. There's the grudge we've had against Mabel Allen ever since she won the Fourth of July Beauty Prize. And the contempt we've felt for Billy Reed since we caught him cheating at marbles. Little things? Yet not so little after all. Big enough to twist and warp our character out of shape.

Our unburied yesterdays — the sorrow we won't put away — the anger or remorse we won't forget—the whole, ugly, festering mass of mistakes and misunderstandings — they have wrecked more lives than a dozen wars. And still we go lugging them along, sacrificing new chances for moth-eaten memories.

What an interesting adventure? Go out some night into a crowded street and watch the living who are carrying their unburied dead.

There's the woman who was a bewitching Gibson Girl back in the 90's . . . and who hasn't been able to forget it since.

She might be warm and friendly now, part of this vital, new world picture. But she's addled, dull and remote instead. For she can't forget the pink rose she tucked behind her ear . . . the frou-frou of her ruffled taffeta skirt . . . the waiting line of beaux.

And there's the man who fought with his brother in 1909—and has poured every particle of his energy into that feud ever since. He was a bright fellow, too, with a gay charm about him. Now he looks like a withered persimmon. Wonder what he might have done with life if he hadn't wasted it on hate?

Wonder what we all might do with our lives if we'd get a good spade and start digging . . . then walk away free to make a really new start?

Timely Editorial

Vandenberg Explains.

We are indebted to Senator Vandenberg for a concise description of the consequences of forgiving taxes on 1942 income—in the event congress overcomes the treasury's objections and passes a bill based on the Ruml pay-as-you-go plan.

The senator from Michigan, denouncing the treasury for "unwittingly" encouraging the people to believe that March 15 will be a holiday rather than a pay day, by talking about how much money it would lose under the Ruml plan, added:

"Of course, the truth is that if a taxpayer's 1943 income is approximately the same as in 1942, he pays the same tax March 15 either way, and the treasury gets the money either way.

"What the taxpayer gains is that his books are balanced at the end of the year. And what the treasury loses is only a bookkeeping loss spread over the entire lifetime of the taxpayer, which means that the impact on the treasury like the impact of mortality on a life insurance company is spread over generations."—Akron Beacon Journal.

Interpreting the War News

Tojo Presents Cheerful Picture Of Japanese Gains In Territory

—By GLENN BABB

GENERAL TOJO has made his annual report to his people, on the state of the nation. His problem, as he addressed parliament, was to present a hopeful picture of the war in which Japan has not won a major victory since the conquest of Burma was completed nearly nine months ago.

To keep morale high he shifted emphasis from the purely military aspects to a contrast between Japan as the possessor of a vast new wealth and the United States and Britain as the new "have not" nations.

"Today after one year of our war of justice," he told the diet, "the southern areas, the world's foremost treasure house, has been completely secured by us. . . . In contrast to our position the United States and Britain, which boasted of their wealth and resources before the war, now are exposing a great shortage in vital war resources."

There is far too much truth in the Japanese premier's picture to suit Americans, who, because of Japan's conquests in those southern regions, have had to forego some of the more luxurious features of a standard of living far above the dreams of the average subject of the mikado.

But that is just one side of the picture. Perhaps the Japanese people can get some spiritual comfort out of their premier's description of their new wealth; it is certain that they are a long way from getting any physical comfort out of it.

The American who shivers in the 60 degrees of his oil-heated home and expends shoe leather where he used to wear out rubber need not envy the lot of Tojo's compatriots, whose shoddy footwear is no protection against slushy, muddy streets and to whom 60 degree heat would be undreamed of winter comfort.

Not for them is the oil of the East Indies or the rubber of Malaya. The army gets it all—all that is, that Japan has the means of gathering and the shipping to haul.

THE key remark of the premier's speech was this: "Of course it will require great efforts on our part to make these resources demonstrate their real wealth and power." That doubtless sums up the task on which Tojo's government is concentrating its greatest efforts. Japan has won great wealth, taken it out of the resources of the United Nations and added it to her own.

But the question is whether she has the capacity to use it with anything like the effectiveness with which it was used by its former owners.

Tojo promised his people victory in general terms, but aside from the general assurance that Japan's position for offense as well as defense had been established by seizure of the necessary bases, there was no specific promise of new conquests.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Before the 78th congress was much over a week old, more than 1,000 bills and resolutions had been introduced.

To a lot of the old-timers on the Hill, that's not even worth mentioning. Practically all Congresses are like that.

A great chunk of these bills will never reach the house or senate floors. They will die in committees. Some will expire because their authors are unable to make their pleas heard above the tumult and shouting of more important legislation; some because their authors don't care much anyway, they having introduced them only because of pressure from important constituents.

Another sizable percentage are so-called "private bills"—principally measures to settle individual claims against the government for damages to property or persons.

Still that leaves more bills than any newspaper could itemize and explain. In Tuskegee, Ala., they probably know there are three bills pending to establish memorials to the late Negro scientist and educator, Dr. George Washington Carver, but I doubt if much of the rest of the United States ever heard about them.

PROBABLY no one has taken the trouble to report that Sen. Pat McCarran has revived that ancient battle between the Commonwealth of Virginia and the national capital by introducing a bill to establish (once and for all) the boundaries between Virginia and the District of Columbia. The same senator has another measure that might stir up a storm—a bill to establish a federal Department of Aviation.

Sen. Lister Hill has a "universal service and total mobilization" bill and Sen. Hattie Caraway has one to establish preparatory schools for West Point and Annapolis.

There already are at least two to provide for rehabilitation of wounded veterans of this war (one also includes rehabilitation of injured war workers) and another would pay a $60 "bonus" to men honorably discharged from military service.

* * *

IN BOTH chambers, bill have dropped into the hopper which would authorize the president to make the late Col. William (Billy) Mitchell a posthumous major general.

Both house and senate have a resolution pending which would extend the right to vote to all persons 18 years of age or older.

There are bills to establish training schools for civilian glider pilots; to call an international convention for drawing up "an international constitution;" to count out all aliens in enumerating congressional districts; to grant free postage to WAACS, Waves and Spars.

Skip all the controversial measures and the 78th congress could still have a merry time and leave its footprints on the legislative records.

Dave Boone Says:

IT SURE was pretty dull on the radio last night. Nothing but music and quizzes and jokes and commercials. Not a super-broadcast by the government all evening.

And no programs interrupted to broadcast an official Washington advertisement of a big news release to come today either. My hunch is that the big news of the other night from Africa was an anti-climax to the "great unseen audience."

* * *

I see where the women folks were disappointed. When they were told the government was going to give 'em something of terrific importance they thought it must be something about making it easier to get sugar, etc.

* * *

I know a fellow who made a bet that the big news was to be a formal announcement that Frank Hague had been named ambassador to Russia.

* * *

Dozens of hair oil and tooth paste firms wrote the government offering to sponsor its future broadcasts if allowed to slip in a few commercial jingles.

Health And Diet

Common Cold Can Be Relieved.

—By DR. CLENDENING

WHAT shall I do for my cold, doctor?"

Well, the doctor probably doesn't know any more about it than you do. In fact, when you ask the doctor, he may be suffering just as much from a cold as you are.

In the first place, you can discard the idea that you are going to cure a cold and be perfectly comfortable by any method known to man in five hours, a day, or in fact, five days.

Inflamed Mucous Membrane.

No matter what causes a cold—what particular kind of a germ—the effect is an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose, the throat and later on of the bronchial tubes.

The inflammation of the mucous membrane of the throat gives the feeling of rawness of the throat and later on when the bronchial tubes are affected, there is a feeling of tightness and rawness in the chest. But this is not all: along with this go the symptoms of a generalized infection—flashes of hot and cold, achey feelings in the muscles, joint pains, loss of appetite, mental depression, the general conclusion that the world is all against you.

Now it is possible to obtain some relief from these symptoms although the treatment does not necessarily shorten the course of the disease. Let us look at some medicinal remedies suggested.

First aspirin, which is probably the favorite and the first-suggested remedy nowadays.

It definitely relieves pain, especially of headache and of the joints and of the muscles, by a central action on the nervous system, so it does not make any difference what causes the pain or discomfort, it will be relieved just the same by aspirin. Now all of these things plainly indicate that aspirin deserves its reputation in the treatment of a cold. Checking the symptoms as given above and the effects of aspirin, it will be seen that it relieves the symptoms but it certainly does not cure the cold.

In Dr. Wesley W. Spink's book published in 1942 on the sulfa drugs, such as sulfonamide, he has made a list of the diseases for which the drugs are no good. At the head of the list is the common cold. I hope this will be a terrible lesson.

These drugs are to the fore in everyone's imagination now, so the pressure on the doctor to give one for a cold is great. But remember, they all have disagreeable side effects. They make you feel like the dickens for days. That is all right if you have a serious disease like pneumonia, but you don't want to submit yourself to this just for a cold.

As Others See It

Observation.

Some advocates of the pay-as-you-go plan are said to be waiting for a formula. But if put to work the plan would be a first rate formula itself.—Kansas City Star.

Danger Foreseen.

Secretary Ickes has advised persons living in the country to start a fish pond to get around the meat shortage. The drawback to this is that just about the time the fish were big enough to eat, some cheerful experimenter would come along and order them plowed under.—Ohio State Journal.

A Farmer's Diary

Guard the Roots

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT WAS on a steep barren hill. Some years ago a sudden downpour washed a gully no more than 18 inches deep. Since then, I had not seen the place until after the latest thaw. The field had been long abandoned and now that ditch had reached a depth of 20 feet.

I followed up along the narrow stony trough. Raw clay tumbled constantly down along the steep moist sides. Farther on, the right bank of the earthy wound was edged with a kind of bluegrass and the side became a perpendicular wall of clay.

I brushed away a clump of grass, and found, even 20 feet below the surface, white fleshy rootlets. They were nestled thickly and had used up the excess moisture so well that the earth did not become saturated and slide. I dug deeper and severed a larger root and detected, in the sap, the heavy, somewhat disagreeable odor of locust. I saw, on the tiny crotches, small nitrogen-fixing nodules.

When I walked through the depression, I looked for the locust tree. One large one stood more than 250 feet away—near a dense hedge of osage orange. That was the farthest I had ever known lateral roots of locust to travel.

And then I thought—standing in the trough of that mammoth open ditch—how generous one might be to this barren field and to the neighborhood below it, if he scattered a few handfuls of locust beans on either side. Coming back after 10 years more, the ruinous gully might have almost disappeared, and rich dark green bluegrass might cover well the hollow.

Roots—the saving power of all other living things. Roots—without which there would be no leaves—no human or animal life—and even a kindly sun would shine upon a world of barren wilderness. Roots—deep in the silent soil, holding together the rich good earth—making from the wastes of the barnyard, the decay of living matter such miracles as food and fiber and fuel and even flowers.

GIVES RULING

Judge Designates Heirs In $35,000 Estate.

All of the estate which Martha L Brown deceased received from the estate of her late husband James Brown should be divided equally between his heirs and her heirs according to written opinion by Judge Stuart Cramer in the probate court petition of the Richland Trust company administrator of the estate of the late Mrs Brown against William Earl Bridges et al

The matter unusual in that it not only involves the disposition of more than $35 000 but establishment of a precedent will be reviewed by the court of appeals when it meets for its March session in Ashland county No similar case can be found on Ohio records

Complicating the issue was the fact that Mrs Brown wife of James Brown who accumulated the estate had been a patient in an insane institution since 1911 including the time of her husband's death in 1938 and her subsequent inheritance She died in 1942 without regaining competency The couple had no children.
